GO

ADVANCE TO

COLLECT 2006

It is our turn, and we are rolling into a new school year. This year, Chicopee Comprehensive High School is as full of school spirit as ever! All aspects of CCHS have gotten their game on. We are taking a chance, and we are doing our best academically, in sports, and in fun. Comp is even doing an exceptional job preparing students for life after high school. Amanda Kenney, a junior, has already started looking at colleges and is excited about the future. Steve Czupryna, a star member of the cross country team, track and field team, and the basketball team says that "the best thing about sports at CCHS is that we have outstanding athletes who try their best at every game." To sum up this incredible school, all we have left to say is "Advance to GO! Collect 2006!"

Here, the sophomores are collecting their order forms for their rings. Deciding whether or not they want to purchase a ring at all was a tough decision for them.

Crystal Russell, a senior at Comp, stands in front of the Colt's Corner logo hoping to attract some buyers.

What are your expectations for 2006?

A junior, Adam Karcz said:
"I want to be able to play in The Battle of The Bands "

Collecting cans-- Katrina Alicea and Mariusz Hajduk gladly donate five cans to the soup kitchen. Since they donated five cans, they will each receive a free meal at Compaccinos.

Taking a close look at the construction of the new school, we see the production advancing swiftly. The new school is expected to open in 2008.

Go directly to school! Do not pass Dunkin Donuts! This is one rule Jen Tapp and Amanda Macintosh could never follow. Without their daily coffee to wake them up, they would never make it through the day!

Showing our school spirit for our football team, we go in school colors to show our pride. Wearing colors during spirit week and color days is an extremely competitive business at CCHS.

Olivia Wegman, a junior, said, "I want to start looking at colleges."

Lasharie Weems, a junior, said, "I hope to score high on the PSAT's to get scholarships for college."

Mr. Osetek

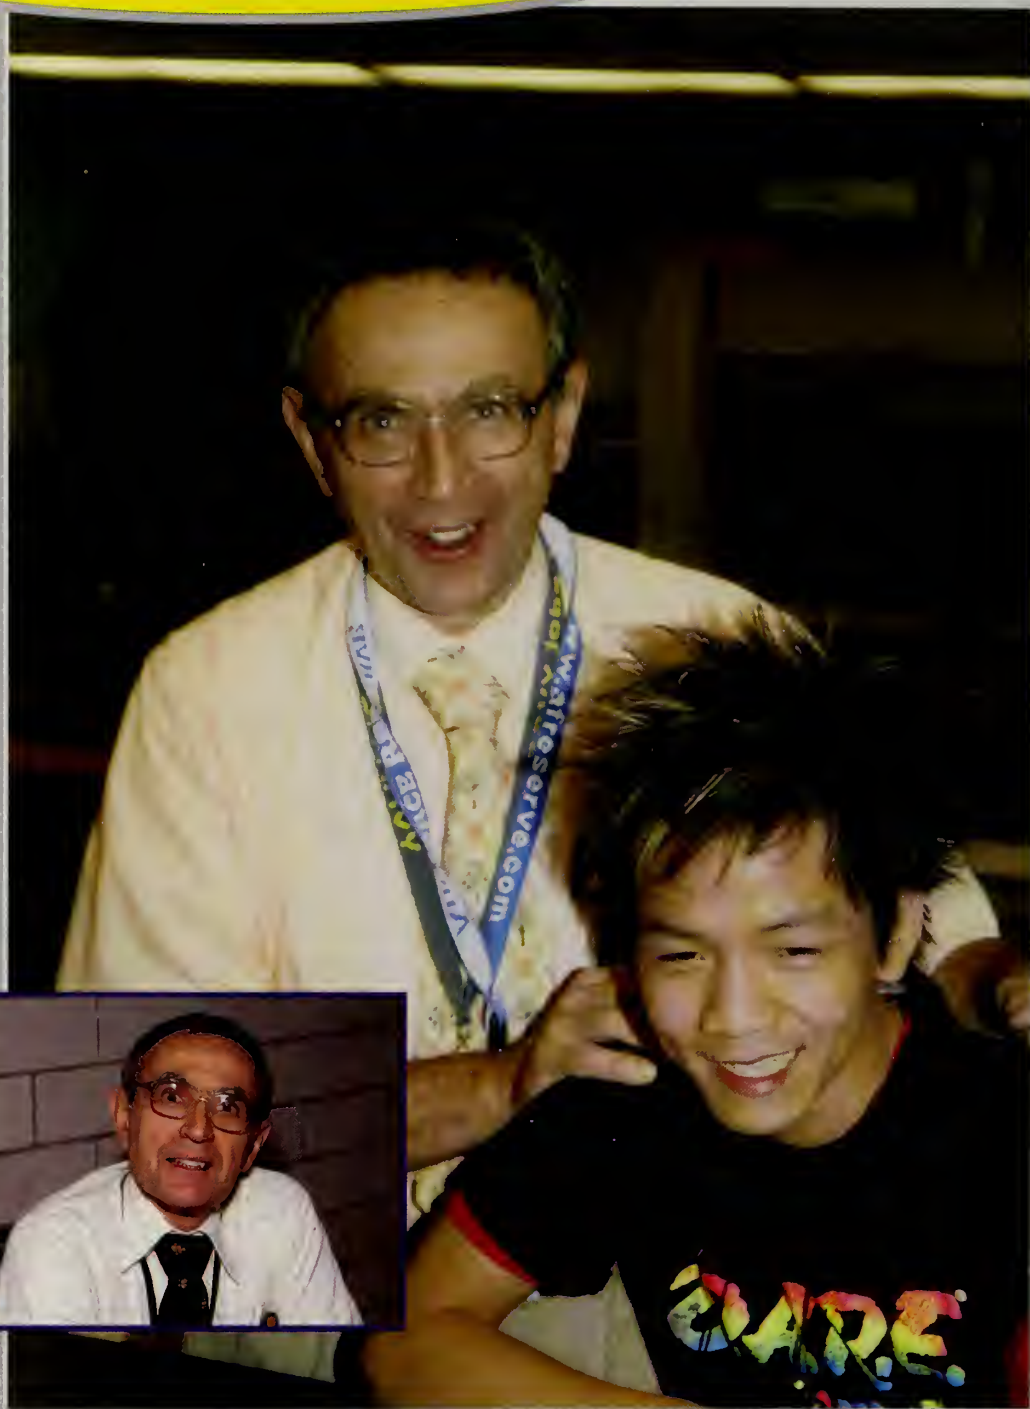

DEDICATION

After 37 years of educating students at Chicopee Comp, many teachers might be eager to retire and relax. Most people, but not Mr. Osetek, who has taught in the science department here at Comp since 1967 and is not slowing down. Over the years, he has taught most high school science courses to students in all grades and levels. The two classes he has been teaching the longest are Chemistry and Physical Science which he has taught for 31 years and 28 years respectively.

Mr. Osetek also has been a huge supporter of school activities over the years. He attends Comp hockey, basketball, and baseball games as much as he can and is always present on opening night for drama productions and Comp Frolics. With his great energy, Mr. Osetek also enjoys going swimming and biking in the summertime. Other favorite hobbies of his include gardening and reading the newspaper, especially the Sunday Republican and the Boston Globe.

The environment is very important to Mr. Osetek as well. Those who know him have learned he doesn't waste anything and makes sure to recycle everything he can.

- Steve Czupryna

Officer Morissette

DEDICATION

As a man with many roles, Officer Morissette makes a big effort to keep our school safe and running smoothly. Born in Baystate Medical Center, he was raised with one sister who is three years older than him. Officer Morissette's home town is Chicopee, but now he lives in Belchertown.

He enjoys doing things such as hunting, fishing, building things, taking pictures, and SCUBA. You name it, he does it. In fact, this year Officer Morissette took over advising the hip hop dance team. It started off as a group, and he made it a team. Taking time out of his day, he helps keep this group together. It has been a very successful group. He hopes to keep it going and to find competitions for them in the future. Furthermore, despite his busy schedule, he also finds time to advise the GSA.

Officer Morissette still finds time for his family and his two sons, Matthew, age eight, and Nathaniel, age ten. Officer Morissette plans on staying in this school for as long as they let him. He stated, "It's not a job, it's a commitment." Officer Morissette deserves recognition for his accomplishments and his caring attitude.

Around the Board Again

CLASS HISTORY

We asked a few seniors what their best memory about high school was, and here were their responses:

"Having fun at parties, going to Canada, and playing football"

-John Provost

"Dancing in a Tu-Tu" -Jay Lafleur

"Playing sports" -Katie Jones

"The Parties" -James Jimmo

"Going to the parties and hanging out with friends" -Kelly Partridge

"Playing sports, partying, powderpuff, friends, and Sam made the best part of my high school memories... and lunch" - Shawn Francisco

"Basketball and all the teachers that made an influence in my life and making a lot of friends"

-Ezequiel Navedo

"Playing battle of the bands"

-Robert Tanguay

"Doing Powderpuff and acting like myself" -Andrew Boryczka

"BJ" Robinson, Shawn Francisco, Ian Murphy, and Matt Laflamme show extreme spirit on color day sophomore year. These boys were always having a good time at everything they did.

During their junior year class trip, best friends Jordan Marshall and Nikki Wilk spend time together before watching the Blue Man Group. "The show was a lot better than I expected it to be; our whole class had a lot of fun," said Jordan Marshall.

Good friends Desiree Pirog and Nikki Wilk have gone to every sword game together. They always show their Comp spirit by being decked out in yellow and blue!

As juniors, we celebrate our victory of being the champs of power puff. During the spirit week rally, we beat the senior class.

Jen Tapp, Katie Gay, and Caitlin Maloney enjoy their girl's night in luxury. They gave each other facials, painted their toenails, ate popcorn, and watched sad movies. What's more relaxing than that?

Think Pink

-Freshman Year

Maxine Guptar and Amanda McIntosh are dressed up as nerds for Halloween. The freshman had fun showing up with unique costumes.

Back in 2000 - 2001

Hey everybody, freshman year sucked! "Freshman year was just one big anxiety attack; there were so many firsts for me!," Amanda Barrows said frowning. Okay, not everyone felt that way. "Freshman year was one big party; it was definitely better than middle school," says Shannon Bailey. Being an underclassman means work, studying, and tolerating the hassles of the juniors and seniors.

Freshmen year was certainly one to remember with meeting new people and learning new things. The thrill of spirit week and the excitement of winning the sword game were just a few of the many moments we all shared as the "babies" of the school. Winter Cotillion at The Log Cabin was a first for many of the freshman who all agreed that it was a great time. "It was my first formal high school dance... it was fun, and I had the hottest date there," laughs Kayla Glasson. Spirit week was a new adventure for freshmen. Color wars, dress up day, and the Spirit Week rally were just a few of the many exhilarating events.

As the year progressed, many of the freshmen began settling into the routine of high school. Whether they loved it or hated it, most seniors agree that freshmen year certainly had memorable moments!

-Heather Salamon
& Jessica Pepin

"Jen, Katie, and I have known each other since we were five, and they're still two of my favorite people in the world," says Laura Cyran. Jen Tapp and Katie Gay were over Laura's house before leaving for a camping trip.

These girls take time from their tennis game in gym to huddle. Having gym with friends makes working out more enjoyable.

"Cotillion was a good way to spend time with old friends and make new ones. I had a lot of fun, and after that I went every year," said Katie Jones. Many others felt the same way apparently because this has been a big night for Comp students every year since then.

Seeing Double

Good Times

All Smiles

Celebrating BJ's Robinson's birthday, the freshman guys hang out over Kayla Glasson's house. Hanging out outside of school was a favorable past time for all freshmen.

Kerry Hurst, Amanda Barrows, and Kayla Glasson hang out at Kayla's house. Over the years, they all met new people, but some things just never change. They always found time for old friends.

Amanda McIntosh, Cody Nallett, Kelly Partridge, and Katie Jones have some of the same classes together. The best part of class is having your friends there.

When asked about the winter Cotillion, Christie Sevigny said "I had a lot of fun. I thought my friends and I looked really pretty too." Everyone went all out dressing up.

Rolling back to Sophomore Year

Joe Derosier arrives for the spirit rally. Joe says, "Spirit week is my favorite time of the school year." You can always count on Joe to spice up any situation.

Back in 2000 - 2001

Finally we're not freshmen was Kerry Hurst's first thought as she walked through the door the first day of school sophomore year. We may not be the youngest in the building, but we are still considered underclassmen. Sophomore year was much more serious for us. We found out Mrs. Pavoni and Mrs. Card were going to be our class advisors. We also elected our class officers; Jon Provost was president, Brian Dooley was vice president, Kayla Glasson was secretary, and Christie Sevigny was treasurer. We were able to pick out our class rings, began paying class dues, and some of us were learning to drive.

This year our football team defeated Chicopee High and brought home the sword. Even though we didn't win spirit week, we didn't come in last.

The decisions that you make your sophomore year help to shape the person you are going to become. You decide if you want to become another face in the crowd or stand out and make something of yourself. Looking back, which path did you choose?

- Kayla Glasson & Amanda Barrows

At their coaches graduation party, Amanda McIntosh, Laura Cyran, Katie Pressey, Courtney LaPlante, Jen Tapp, and Maxine Guptar all enjoy eating enormous amounts of food while bonding as a team. "I remember everyone falling down the hill after that picture was taken," laughed Laura.

Working on their tans again... Brittanie Warren, Kayla Glasson, Nikki Wilk, Jordan Marshall, and Desiree Pirog lay out by Jordan's pool; this is where these girls spent most of the day talking about boys, parties, and other upcoming events. "Working on your tan is crucial during any girl's summer. Who doesn't know this?," Jordan Marshall giggled.

Kerry Hurst and Amanda Kasza have been best friends since middle school. "There is never a dull moment when you're with Kerry. We spent most of our time laughing and acting crazy, but we have so many unforgettable memories," says Amanda.

This group of sophomores gather together at Erin Seifert's house before Cotillion. "I had such an awesome time, and the food was great," said Matt Vallan.

Rachel Feyre and Ilona Kravchenko spent time with Ren Holbeck while in Quincy Market. These two took part in the "We the People... Citizens of the Constitution" field trip at Boston's Federal Court.

Girls just want to have fun! This group of girls went to Chili's to celebrate Kerry Hurst's 16th birthday. "It was such a great birthday! I was able to spend it with all of my closest friends," says Kerry.

Goofing around again... Ashley Ayers, Marisa Vecchiarelli, and Danielle Lafleur avoid taking things seriously. You can always find this group of girls having a good time.

Advance to Gold -

The visit to New York was a sobering one for the U.S. History students who made the trip to see the Holocaust Museum. The atmosphere of the city itself, on the other hand, was one of fun, as juniors Erin Seifert, Samantha Lafleur, Katie Jones, and Nicole Klein demonstrate playfully.

Junior Year

Back in 200 - 200

From the start of freshman year, you anxiously await the day when you can claim upperclassman status. Then comes junior year. You're not at the top of that high school hierarchy yet, but you're finally free of that fresh meat status. You won't be picked on or ordered around; in fact, you can give some orders of your own. Just steer clear of the seniors....

But the class of 2006 just wouldn't listen. They started their junior year with a bang, going head to head with the seniors in Powder Puff, and they came out on top. The junior boys put on quite a performance, dancing, cheering, and stunting their way into the favor of the judges to earn an unexpected victory over the upperclassman. And the crowd went wild.

Encouraged by this victory, the juniors discovered an abundance of school spirit. They barely trailed the seniors in points through the spirit week events and all the events through the year. Most dressed up for Halloween, they managed to collect almost as many canned goods as the seniors and were right on their tail at the end of Penny Wars.

Unfortunately, too soon came the time for the fun and competitive attitude to fade, and the juniors settled down to get serious about classes and prepare for SAT's.

For some, the AP English students in particular, it was time to begin preparing resumes and cover letters, and to start filling out college applications. For others, it was time to take grades more seriously and study harder to earn the grades and ranks that would make them eligible for the scholarships they may need to attend their preferred schools.

By June, the SAT's were over with for the year, final exams have been completed, and schedules have been set up for the year to come. Now, the juniors finally get a chance to sit back and appreciate the relaxing end of what most high school students dub the hardest and most stressful of the four years.

- Melissa Desmarais
Theresa Robitaille

After returning from Friendly's, Valerie Peters, Nicole Cote, Rachel Feyre, and Jodi Fairbanks hang out and relax at Manny Mundo's house. They enjoy their last weeks of freedom before senior year begins in September.

The Boston Red Sox, after 86 years of struggle, finally defeated the competition in 2004 and took home a ring in a series that will go down in history as a near impossible comeback.

What to Mess Up Next...

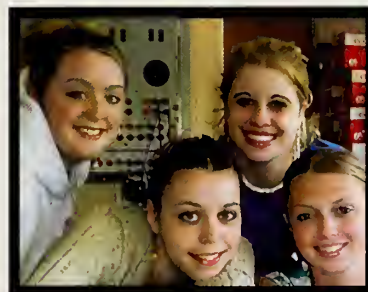

Happy 17th Birthday Ashley!

Top Hats and Ties... at a Luau??

"Dress up to reveal your true self." A Halloween photo-op in AP English calls for a few wise words from Mrs. Chelte.

Anatomy students Katrina Reed, Kelly Partridge, Melissa Desmarais, and Katie Jones take advantage of some down time after the BIG exam.

Competition was the last thing on their minds as these juniors found themselves elbow deep in shark guts. But the moment Mr. Taupier gave them the OK to clean up, excitement began to bubble as they psyched up for the Spirit Week rally.

The guys celebrate a well-deserved victory in the locker room after sweeping the seniors away in the Powder Puff Competition. The boys were led to victory by a group of junior girls who helped choreograph the routine.

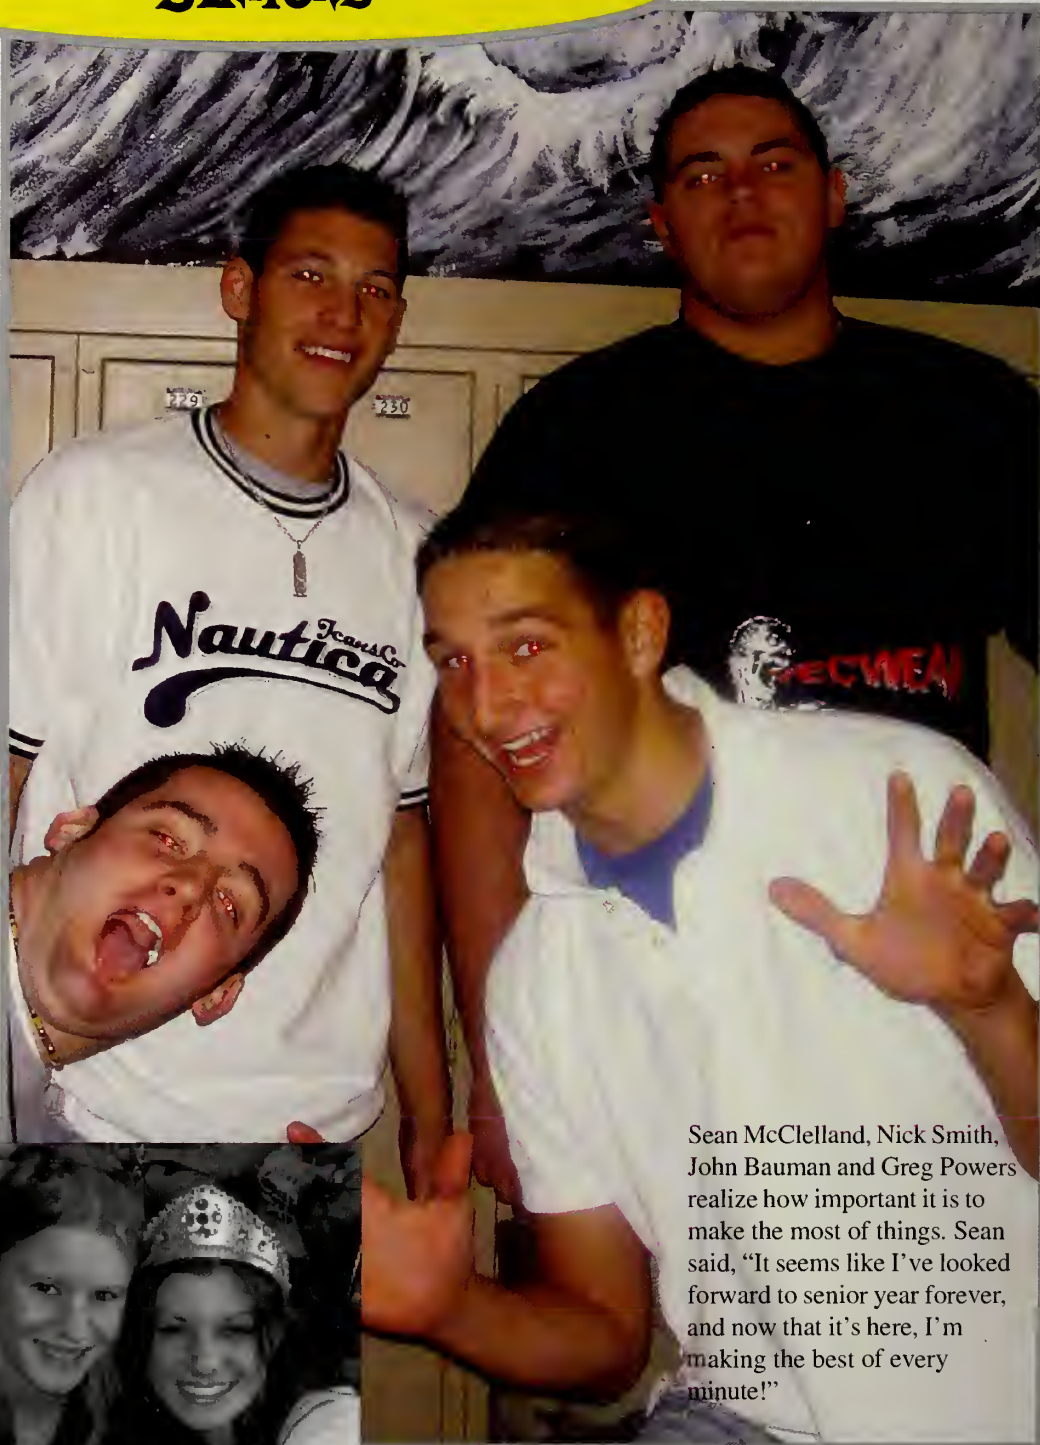

The Next Turn

SENIORS

Over the past four years, we've all grown up to be unique individuals. We came in as freshman, most of us not knowing where we wanted to end up. At that time, the end of high-school seemed like an eternity away. As sophomore year flew by, we accomplished many things, such as passing MCAS exams and picking out our class rings. Going into junior year, everyone started to find themselves. Some knew exactly what their future held for them and some were still unsure. With the excitement of defeating the class of 2005 in powderpuff and winning the sword game, it was an unforgettable year. Kayla Glasson said, "Junior year really made me realize how fast high school would fly by. It has taught me to live life to the fullest with no regrets."

Now that senior year is here, reality is starting to set in. Taking the SAT's and filling out college applications make you realize how close the end actually is and how fast it will come. We leave with a handful of memories and many lessons learned. Looking back on all the great times, proms, spirit weeks, and parties, many of us never thought the day would come that we would have to say good-bye. As we walk down the isle, we realized one memorable chapter in our lives has come to an end and a new one is about to begin.

- Jordan Marshall

Sean McClelland, Nick Smith, John Bauman and Greg Powers realize how important it is to make the most of things. Sean said, "It seems like I've looked forward to senior year forever, and now that it's here, I'm making the best of every minute!"

Seniors Nikki Wilk, Jordan Marshall, Nikki Hill, and junior Amanda Cieccko enjoy time together at the boys soccer game. "This year has been a blast," said Nikki Wilk, "I'm enjoying every bit of it!"

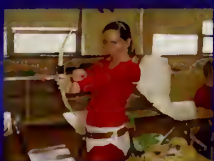

Best friends, Kayla Glasson and Amanda Barrows, stopped for a quick picture on the way to a Friday night football game. Amanda said, "The football games are a great way to show your school spirit."

Giving Brian Dooley a boost, fellow seniors Corey Gilpatrick, Jay Lafleur, and Joe Derosier practice some stunts for Powderpuff. "Winning last year was awesome, and we're working really hard to do it again," said Corey.

A group of senior boys get together to show their school spirit. "The paint was a mess, but it was definitely worth it. We all had a great time," said senior John Bauman. Although Comp didn't bring home the sword, you can tell these boys sure had fun!

Glad to be Gold

Coming into our junior year when we crossed the gym, we realized we were upperclassmen. We would get to do all of the fun stuff like powderpuff and prom. For many, junior year is especially difficult; many try to schedule their hardest courses before senior year.

We started off at the bottom of the bottom; our class color was brown. We then stepped up to purple for our sophomore year. Now, being upperclassmen we had the privilege of being gold and being treated like gold by the underclassmen. Of course, we would still have to wait to rule the school.

When asked about her favorite things in junior year, Sam Langevin said, "finally being an upperclassman. Also I'm looking forward to being a senior next year." Brian Strzempek was also excited to be an upperclassman and to have only one more year left of high school. Ryan Authier said, "I have more privileges than the underclassmen have, and I can't wait to see what next year brings."

- Amanda Barrows

Nikki Wagner and Jessica Cote are working the health fair. "I really enjoyed working the health fair because it got me out of class all day," says Nikki.

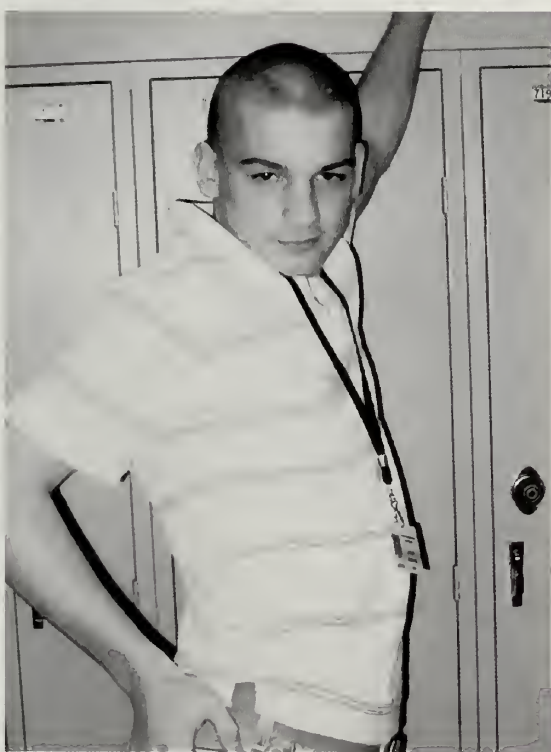

Walking in style, Britt Bourdo and Alora Cirillo stop to show off their outfits. These girls have a way of making anything work. "I like to mix and match different colors and styles to make outfits original," said Alora.

Looking for a little excitement, Ryan Authier, Meg Sullivan, Amanda Ciecko, and Jen Kalizs roam the halls.

Joselyn Comeau, Caitlin Keene, and Sam Langevin have been friends since their freshmen year. They took this picture before a football game, where they went to support our team.

Jeremy Shepard often acts silly between classes. He's always doing crazy things. You never know what's next.

Even though Kristen Marcotte isn't in art class, she finds times to visit her friend Steph to critique all of her art work. "Kristen loves to go to the art room to hangout," said Steph Blair.

Brenda Sanchez and Jackie McKenna are having fun but still learning at the same time. They have learned a lot from the health fair this year.

Meg Sullivan and Julie LaBrecque have been friends forever. Even with the stress of junior year, these girls always seem to be having a good time.

"The most exciting part of prom is getting your hair and makeup done. Finding that perfect dress is crucial. It's nerve-racking not knowing who you're going to get asked by," says Brittany Bourdo

Tania Forte said, "I can't wait; this is my first prom. I can't wait to be together with everyone and dance and have a good time."

President of the class, Alison Montemagni, has been stressed out about prom. She says, "I hope everything falls into place. We worked so hard to make this prom the best ever."

"I can't wait to pick out my suit for prom... and I already have someone in mind to ask," laughs Aaron Marshall. Who will that lucky lady be?

The biggest thing that happens in 11th grade is junior prom. We spend the year deciding who to ask or what to wear.

Mr. Jendrysik and Mr. Zdoykowski along with class officers Alison Montemagni, Nikki Wagner, Carly Siano, and Brendon Gibb plan the prom. They pick out decorations, party favors, and much more.

While these Juniors spend the night dancing and hanging out, they will make many memories that they will carry for the rest of their lives. -

Jordan Arroyo thinks he's sneaky, taking time out of science class to make a personal call. Jordan said, "If I was allowed to use my phone in class in the first place, I wouldn't be doing anything wrong, now would I? It is such a stupid rule!"

Surprise, surprise! Aaron Marshall is getting into trouble again. Even Mrs. Beggetta can't get this boy to put his cell phone down. Aaron jokes, "I got the new Motorola Razr. How hott is that?"

Nowadays, everyone owns a cell phone. With inventions such as text messaging, even faculty can't keep their hands off of this addiction. The junior class is known for their nonstop cell phone usage. Everywhere you look, they're on a mission to find a new secluded space in the school to talk, without being caught! Most have become very good at this technique. Although, teachers have caught on, you can count on the class of 2007 to continue with their "necessary communication."

- Jordan Marshall

Doing what she does best, TALKING! Katie Pressey doesn't go very long in between phone calls, even when they are not allowed. When asked why her calls couldn't wait, Katie replied "All my calls are important calls!"

Jennifer Riether is on her phone twenty-four seven. She texts behind her desk in science class, and she's sometimes tardy for her next class to make an urgent phone call. "I don't go anywhere without my cell," said Jenn.

SOPHOMORES

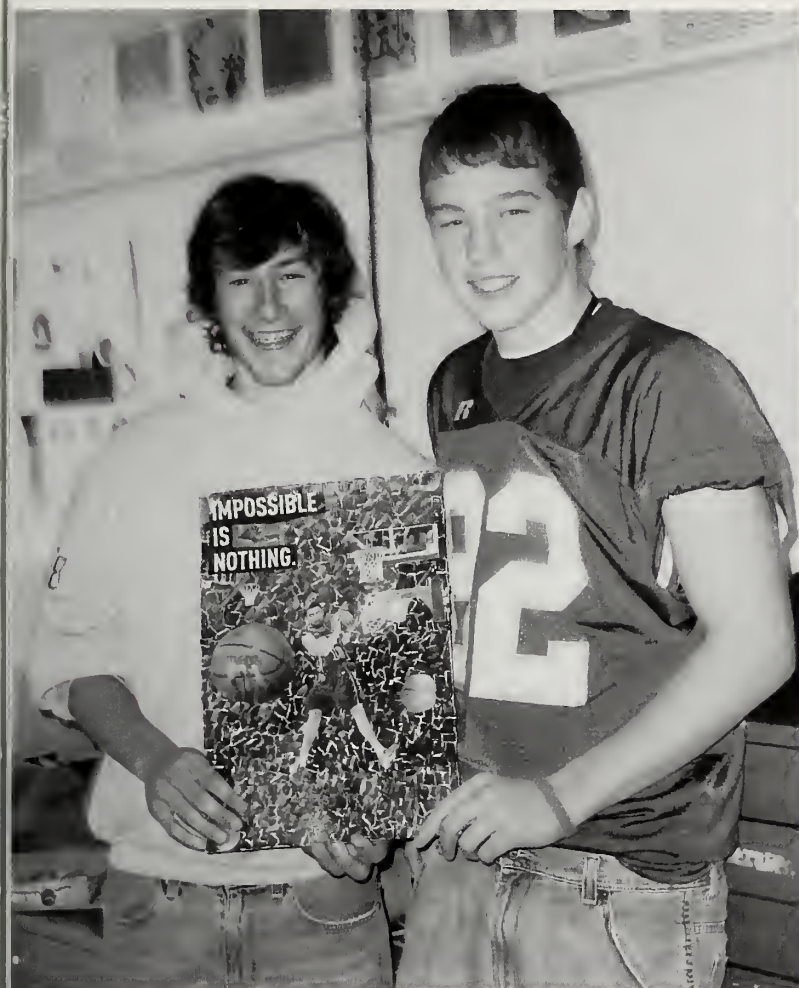

The Sophomore class of 2008 got a strong start by winning points for spirit week. They charged to their goal like any Colt would! They raised the most money for the Hurricane Katrina fund. As a result, they were awarded 200 points towards Spirit Week, and their class advisor, Mr. Paquette, (right) shaved his head. When asked about what made him shave his head, Mr. Paquette said, "I did it for the kids." The class of 2008 is proving themselves to be a hard working, spirited, and fun class.

Every year the MCAS is an important part of sophomore year. This year's 10th graders are the first students that have to take and pass the science portion of the MCAS. They will be working hard to prepare for that all year.

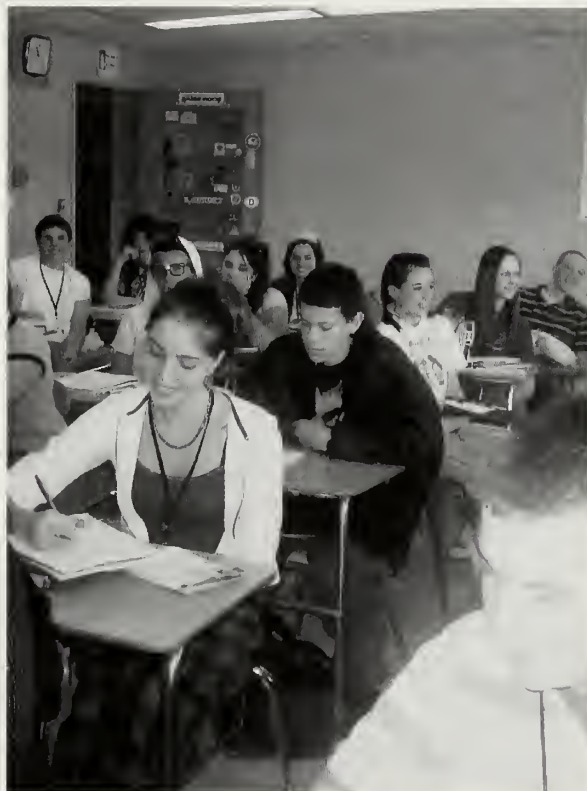

Sometimes sophomores are stuck in a rut. They have a year of experience with them, but are not yet upperclassmen. Sophomore year is about being role models to the freshmen, growing up, losing your immaturity, preparing for MCAS, choosing your class ring, and ultimately setting down the tracks for your future life.

~ Marissa Provost

Sophomores express themselves through art. Aaron Beaulieu and Mike Dearing made a collage using only cut-outs of magazines.

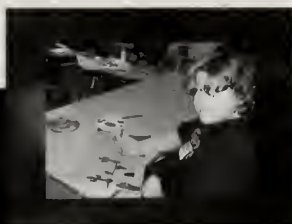

Preparing for MCAS is always a tough task. These sophomores are trying to make the best of it and have a good time while learning.

Dressing up for Halloween is really popular at Chicopee Comp. "He's my idol, and I wanted to be like him for a day," said Shane Beaulieu when asked why he chose to dress up as Mickey Mouse for Halloween.

Being healthy in Basic Foods, Beth Gaboury, Chelsea Rivera, David Hill, Kate Rodowicz, and Ms. Snow-Redington made soft pretzels for a healthy snack. Ms. Snow Redington wants to remind everyone, "you are what you eat."

IPOD Nano is the newest of the IPOD's. Joseph Lucena had gotten his and said, "It's small and easier to carry."

When asked about his MP3 player, Ryan Griffin said, "It's great. It holds a lot of songs." Ryan got his Memorex MP3 player last year for Christmas.

What's on your IPOD /MP3?

- Bury Your Dead, With Honor, Pearl Jam, Killswitch, and Sublime ~ Jack Senecal

- Notorious B.I.G., Casey Jones, Shoot to Kill, The Spill Canvas, Since the Flood ~ Sam Ayer

- Him, Everytime I Die, Kanye West, Rascal Flatts, Senses Fail, and New Found Glory ~ Jaime Dever

- TuPac, N.W.A. and Blood for Blood ~ Mike Hurley

- Notorious B.I.G. vs. TuPac and Freestyle ~ Jon Herbert

"I have an MP3 Ilo. The best feature is that it has a voice recorder," said Tiffany MacDougall. Tiffany has R. Kelly, Daddy Yankee, and Marques Houston on her MP3.

"IPOD's are so much more convenient; you can have all the songs you want on one single device, instead of carrying around a CD player and a bunch of CDs," said Mike Hurly.

"I think it would be an honor to be the first class to graduate from the new school. It would be a fun experience for at least a year. It's going to be exciting," said Shannon Heroux.

When asked about being the first class to graduate from the new school, Allie Racine said, "Its pretty cool. We're going to be the first to make memories in the new school."

Sophomore, Rebecca Masse, has mixed feelings about the new school. "It will be exciting to be the first class to graduate, but I think the class murals should somehow be part of the new building," she said.

"I think graduating from the new school will be exciting because we get to use all of the new technonlogy. We will also get to use the new sports facility," said sophomore Jack Senecal.

In April of 2005, the city of Chicopee started the adventure of building a new Chicopee Comp. The sophomore class of 2008 is going to be the first class to graduate from the new building. The sophomores are excited to have the opportunity to be first to embark on the new adventure. They are apprehensive about being the first to have the privilege of learning in the new classrooms with the new equipment.

Beginning Of the Game

Freshmen

Freshmen in a new territory may not know what to expect from this new high school life. They all become potential targets of the pranks and insults of an upperclassman, but little do they realize that four years of high school might be some of the best years of their lives.

Living it up, having blue and gold spirit, and making memories with new and old friends are things that will last a lifetime. Some of the ways that they will explore high school life will include having a chance to experiment with clubs and activities, going to the homecoming dance, and feeling the energy of spirit week.

With only three more years left, they have just begun to see what their future holds. Before they know it, with a blink of an eye, they will become the senior class of....

Bourdo

Freshman boys can be angels too! Tyler Ciecko and his two crazy sidekicks, Chris Pittsinger and Mike Norton, reveal their uninhibited side; it is just another typical day at CCHS!

Chelsea Mancini is already on the right track for spirit week by dressing up for Halloween and earning points for her class. Even though the freshmen came in last, she did her part!!

"On the first day of school I thought I would get lost, but I found my classes just fine with a little help from my friends," said Megan Vanasse.

Kaitlin Joslyn, Joe Chapdelaine, and Rosa Pena pop up just outside of science class. A few minutes before, they were hard at work taking notes.

In the same study hall, Kristen Stewart, Stephen Rivest, Victor Gouriloe, and Matt Paquette, don't get much work done. Time away from a regular classroom is a rare chance to talk and enjoy a little freedom.

Kali Gilpatrick, Chelsea Rawls, Danielle Drouillard, and Katie LaFlamme are all best friends. They plan to stay that way throughout high school!

Brandon Provost runs the ball for the Colts in an early game against Cathedral. Varsity Coach, Mr. Scheurfeld, says that, "It's a great privilege for Brandon to be a freshman and actually participate at the varsity level. It's a testament to his ability as a player of his age, to compete with seniors and excel in the game."

The first game of the season against the Pacers was a disappointing one for the Colt girls, but freshman LeAnn Rivard did her best to give the Colts' offense a boost. By the end of the season, she scored seven goals. Fellow freshman Alexa Cabel scored eight.

Imagine being a brand new student, struggling to fit in. You seek out a team, hoping to find friends before the school year officially starts. You're one of a few lucky freshman who make the varsity teams. You feel out of place with the upperclassmen, who are already fast friends; you almost wish you were on J.V. with the other freshmen. Then there's the game that changes everything, when you make the winning goal or the game-saving stop. Everyone cheers and you find yourself surrounded by your teammates, you stop feeling like a freshman, and you know that you're finally part of the team.

-Melissa Desmarais

Freshmen Caitlyn Goda, Sam Gelinas, Tom Bobala, and Hillary Roy practice cradling from a stunt at cheerleading practice. Tom, the only boy on the varsity cheerleading squad this year, admits that people make cracks at him for it, but he says, "It doesn't bother me. It's my life."

When asked about his Ipod, Justin Veillette says "I just got my Ipod a few days ago, and I love it! It's a new design video Ipod, and I'm still figuring it out."

Identical twins, Rebecca and Katelyn Dupuis, are both members of the girls soccer team. Although they are sisters, they're still extremely competitive when it comes to sports.

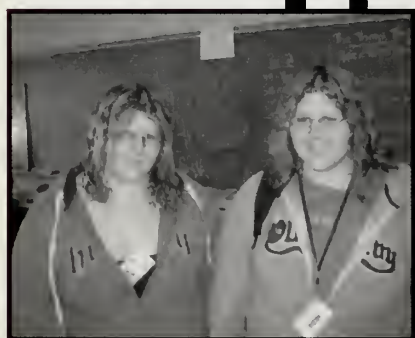

Josh is taller, Jon is older! Twins, Jon and Josh Del Valle, may look similar in their physical characteristics, however they're complete opposites. Jon said, "We actually share only a few of the same friends."

Freshmen have "twice" the fun. This year, in the class of 2009, there are more sets of twins than any of the previous classes. With two sets of girl twins and one set of boys, this class is known for double takes. They may resemble each other, but they have their own personalities. Rebecca Dupuis said, "My sister Katelyn and I are always there for each other; she is definitely my best friend." However, Jon and Josh Del Valle both agreed, "we are not best friends, but we aren't complete opposites either." These freshmen make everywhere they go double the fun.

Melissa Picard and Sabrina Dobosz show their school spirit while dressing up for Halloween to earn points for the freshmen class towards spirit week. Even though they didn't win that day, these girls were proud of the effort they made.

Art class in session! Amanda O'Conner takes a break from a project she was doing to show how much she loves art. Many students here at Comp take art courses because they have fun in a laid back environment.

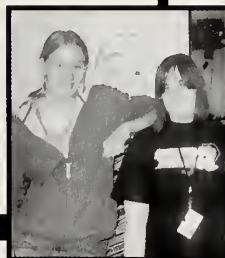

Clowning around again! Freshmen Meagan Clark and Brittany Dussault show their school spirit. Brittany said, "I was really nervous at first. I wasn't sure if everyone was going to dress up, but when I got to school I was so happy I did!" Meagan responded, "It was so awesome to see all of the crazy costumes people came up with, but I still like our costumes best."

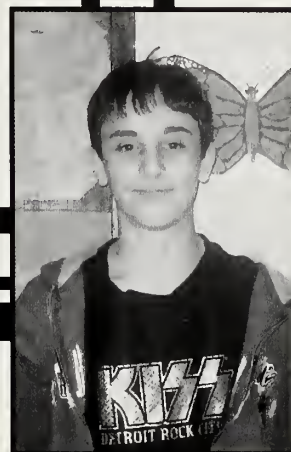

Messing around in gym class, Chris Scott, Samuel Gay, Brenden Becker, Nick Vincelette, and Anthony Rodrigue, show their hard work through the smirks in their faces. Anthony said, "Gym is definitely my favorite class; It's such an easy one-hundred!"

Close friends, Ariel Idica and Jessica Thibodeau spend time together during art class. "I love art class! It is really fun and lets me be creative," said Ariel.

Jon Delgado, shows an enthusiastic attitude towards his English class. Jon said, "I like having English third period; it's a nice way to break up my day."

Freshmen year, an unforgettable experience, is when students get to try everything for the first time. This includes dances, homecoming weekend, and spirit week. How have the freshmen adjusted to Comp? "There are more people here to get to know than there were in middle school. The school itself is okay, but it's falling apart," explained Mark Heines. "I think I've adjusted to this school pretty quickly, and I really like my schedule!" responded, Elizabeth Drobnak. Looking to the next few years, it may seem like it will take forever to graduate. However, time will fly with all the fun this class has!

- Lisa Letendre

Four freshmen girls decided to slack off during their gym period. Teresa Libian said, "Gym can be fun, but sometimes, getting changed is such a pain."

"Too cool for class!" Freshmen boys, Sam Houle and Ricky Arroyo are caught roaming the halls. Many students attempt to get away with this, however, not all are as good at it as these two are.

Freshman year can be quite nerve-racking. Getting situated with all of the new things high school has to offer can be stressful and exciting at the same time. Rallies are one of the coolest things about high school. After attending her first rally, Kate Joslyn said, "There was tons of energy throughout the whole gym, it was great!"

Moving Up To Freshmen Year

Causing Chaos

The life of a student at CCHS may be chaotic at times, but there are many moments that make it worthwhile. One of those moments that make a student's experience memorable is the homecoming dance where senior and junior boys compete for the Powderpuff championship. Comic chaos becomes the norm. The seniors won this year's powderpuff championship.

Field trips were big this year. Going to TRL at MTV, the civil war reenactment, the movies, and to see Bill Cosby were just some of the ways we broke the regular school day routine. Hanging out with friends, arguing with your brothers or sisters who are in school with you, or even studying are just some of the many things that make high school such an important adventure.

This year has brought many changes. One of the biggest things going on this year is the construction of the new Chicopee Comp. Although the parking and traffic is a little chaotic, since they started building the school in April of 2005, the construction is on schedule and is starting to come together like the pieces of a puzzle.

STUDENT LIFE

It is amazing to watch the progress of the building of the new Chicopee Comp. You would think it would be noisy, but students rarely hear anything going on outside.

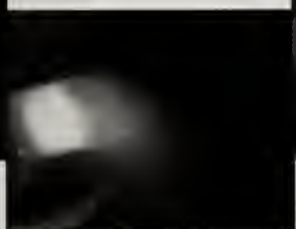

These two goofballs love making people laugh. Ryan McDonald and Greg Powers let thier crazy side out at lunch one day.

Kelly Partridge, Natalie Asselin, Erin Seifert, and Katie Jones may not be the first people you think of for silliness, but they have their moments.

Girls really do just want to have fun! Jessica Cote and Jen Tapp can really rock 'n roll.

Kayla Glasson, Nicole Wilk, Jordan Marshall, and Desiree Pirog all bundle up for the cold weather. The chilly outdoors doesn't phase them though because they're just happy to be having fun!

Now and Then

Through The Years

As you grow up, many things in your life change-- your likes, dislikes and appearance to name a few. Most importantly, your choice of friends fluctuates often as you mature. Throughout your high school career, having friends is crucial. They help define the person you are.

As you enter your freshman year, you think the friends you have then are the friends that will last a lifetime. Throughout your four years, you gain and loose friends, and at the same time you narrow down the people you can truly count on. These select few will be there for you unconditionally and remain an important part of your life forever.

Some people are lucky enough to find these friendships early on in life. Brittnie Warren said, "Jordan has been my best friend since preschool, and I have never doubted that. I think that is a really important part in a solid friendship." You know you have a meaningful friendship when you can grow up so much and still love that person for everything they have grown to be.

- Jordan & Aaron Marshall

Best friends for 14 years, Jordan Marshall and Brittnie Warren still find time to spend together. Jordan said, "Brittnie has been my best friend since I was three, and I don't think anything will ever change that."

Nikki Hill and Amanda Barrows have been friends since kindergarten. Now as co-captains on the varsity soccer team, you'll never catch these two without those little smirks on their faces.

Acting up in second grade and still stirring up trouble together senior year. Best friends, Erin Seifert and Nicole Klein show the true meaning of friendship. Nicole said, "When I'm around Erin, I never have to hesitate to be myself. It's awesome!" When these two are together, it's sure to be a good time.

Always looking for a good time and always doing so together, Nikki Wagner, Carly Siano, and Kate Jopson have been best friends since meeting at Lambert Lavoie. Since then, they have shared many memories together, including a Florida vacation. "I have been friends with Kate and Carly for so long, and high school wouldn't be the same without them," said Nikki.

From camping trips together in elementary school to hanging out throughout their senior year, Desiree Pirog and Kelly Partridge always have smiles on their faces. These two share more memories than they can count, and are sure to make many more.

Nikki Hill and Natalie Asselin have been close friends since dressing up as elves for a kindergarten Christmas play. Living across the street from each other for years has definitely helped these two share many memorable times.

OH THE PLACES

WE GO!

THE YEAR OF THE FIELD TRIP

Look out MTV! Here come two of Comp's finest. Kayla Glasson and Maxine Gupar are ready for their close-up.

"Going to TRL was the coolest birthday idea ever. My best friend Amanda was with me, and I even got a shout out for my 18th," said Kayla Students visiting the art museum in New York City got a chance to see many new things that we don't find in Chicopee. For many Comp students these field trips are the first look they have at a city outside the Springfield Area.

No matter where we are or how we get there we always seem to have fun. Even sitting on a bus for hours on end can be fun if you are with someone like Jeremy Shepard.

No matter how uncomfortable they are, they keep their cool. Mr. Jendrysik, Mr. Kozikowski, and Mr. Czaporowski are just grateful that these are not our school uniforms.

More than ever, this year has brought the opportunities for many exceptional field trips. A few of the exciting trips included Szot Park to see a Civil War reenactment, HCC to hear Bill Cosby speak, and New York City to go to the Metropolitan Art Museum followed by the highlight of being on MTV's TRL! Szot Park was not just another day off from school; it gave the students a chance to "live" back during the Civil War days. Some students and teachers volunteered to dress up as if they were soldiers in the war. The Bill Cosby trip to Holyoke Community College was to motivate the students to go on to college and be successful. Bill Cosby helped the cause by catching the attention of the crowd with some humor. His message was that anything is possible and a good education is essential. While Mrs. Fahey took some students to the Metropolitan Art Museum in New York, the students toured the museum and admired the art. Later that day, the students ate at the Hard Rock Cafe anxiously waiting to go to the MTV studio. TRL was the most anticipated part of the trip where the students screamed their lungs out and clapped their hands off. Field trips are a day off from school, a learning experience, and a good time.

- Chelsea Rice

Always playing around, senior Amanda Barrows dives into an exhibit while in New York with her art class. "The day was great!," she later said. It is an annual trip for the art classes to go to the museum. They spend the entire day in the city and even have time to shop.

"I don't know how they did it. The nurses must have been crazy to spend the night out in a tent like this," said Jen Buchanan. Her day was spent at Szot park with the women of the 3rd battalion, learning how they did their job and how they survived.

Sam Lacoste cannot sit still on the bus. She is too anxious to be on MTV's TRL. She loves the "Big Apple" and bought a shirt to prove it.

Building Toward The Future

In the beginning of the construction, the rafters appear to be going up swiftly. Eventually, the bricks will be put up and the rest of the construction of the building will follow it.

In our building today, we have bricks falling down, water stains on the ceiling tile, very thin walls, missing railings on stairways, stairs worn away so that you can see the cement, missing number plates on most of the lockers, wobbly and broken desks, slanted ceilings, and cracked walls. However, in just as little as two years from now, in September 2007, we will have a brand new building.

We will have more natural lighting in the new school and new electronic bulletin boards so people can actually be aware of announcements or cancellations of sports. We will no longer have televisions hanging from the ceilings, we will have LCD monitors in all classrooms and the cafeteria that will be able to play DVD's on them. This represents an entirely new means of communicating through high technology systems. There will be some new books, but not all will be new because some course material and information will be on-line. Mr. Kozikowski stated that the new technology should make the gathering of information easier. The teachers will have smart boards instead of chalk boards. Parents will also have the ability to see the grades of the students through a program on the computer called IParent.

The vocational section of Chicopee Comprehensive High School is what makes our school unique. In the new school there will be a commercial telecommunications center. Basically, Channel 5 will run all the programs inside of the school. There will be a commercial studio, and all the equipment will be digitalized. Principal, Mr. Kozikowski, believes that career tech education will be a more vibrant part of the educational setting. Info-Tech and high-tech components will be part of all the technical shops.

We will be getting a student union across from the cafeteria where about 70 students can sit and hang out when they are done eating. The band room will be new and improved. The room will have practice booths so a student can be separate from the rest of the class so he or she can concentrate while practicing the instrument they are playing. The auditorium's stage, now, is tiny and there is hardly any room for props, let alone people. The new stage will be the size of our actual auditorium. To add to this, there will be state of the art storage for props. Plus, there is going to be a brand new sound system that will be wired throughout the entire auditorium.

As of right now the construction is going at an appropriate pace. The completion date will be September 2007. With the new school being built, the principal, Mr. Stanley Kozikowski, believes that the new school will instill a greater sense of pride and the students will feel good about going to a new facility. He also stated, "It will bring positivity to everyone. It will be just like the beginning of a new era." The expectations of the new school are said to have a Renaissance effect on students attitudes towards education. This new school will make CHS look tiny, and our Career education will be brought to a higher level.

Although everything about this new school seems almost surreal, there are some hazards to the workers who are constructing the new school. The three main hazards of being a construction worker would have to be the great heights, all of the atrocious weather conditions (despite the fact that no one has been injured yet), and always working around large equipment. The new school will be 340,000 square feet; this is one huge project!

By Amanda Kasza
and Amanda Kenney

The layout of the building is designed, and the workers are preparing to construct the second half of the building. One memorable moment in the fall was when students got to hear the masonry workers singing in unison while they worked.

We asked Mr. LeBlanc (the head of construction) some questions about how the construction was going.

Q: Does the construction of the new high school seem like a difficult task?

A: "I believe the project will not have any problems we have not had to deal with before."

Q: What specific things are you adding to the new school that will probably take a long time to add in?

A: "It is my belief that everything that was planned will be done in the time frame."

Q: How many people does it take to build and construct a building of this size?

A: "At the start, it will take a couple dozen. When the steel is going up it will take hundreds."

Q: Do you feel you are on schedule if the new school is going to be opening on September 2007?

A: "Absolutely, yes!"

Goofing

Off!

Kelsey Cote and Catie Britten are quite classy ladies. Lori Letendre, always looking for fun, playfully puts her arm in the way making the peace sign. These three have been friends since freshman year.

Lori Letendre and Jodie Arpin are always goofing off right before class begins! They seem to always find the time to be crazy and have fun in school.

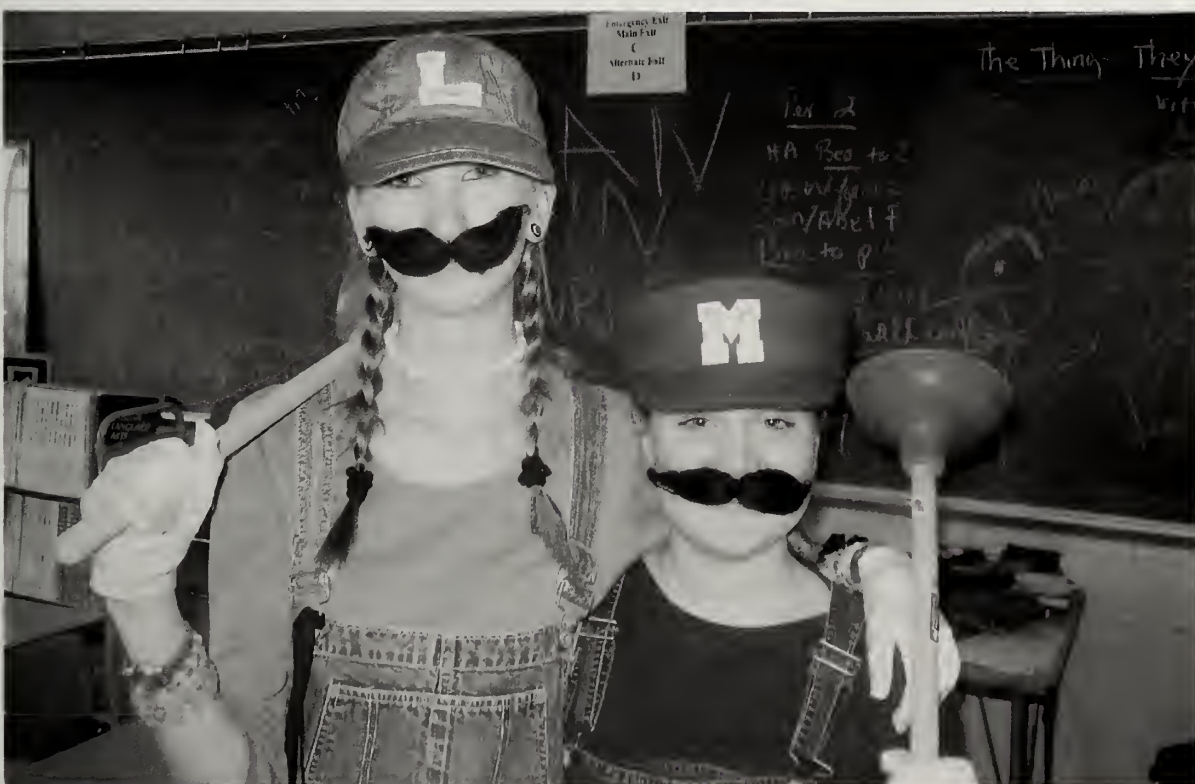

Natasha Colon climbs the "walls" after the Colts Crew Dance Club practice. Like most high school students she finds crazy ways to enjoy her time at school.

Ryan Dube and Kevin Joly are looking extremely scrumptious as they watch the girls walk by in the halls. "WooHoo!" shouts Ryan Dube as he gets checked out by three beautiful ladies!

On their way to take the last midterms of the day, Chris Peek and Josh Vitullo find a few minutes to relax and let off some steam. They are excited to leave school after their midterm because of the half-day.

Danielle Smith and Heather Locke show their enthusiasm during spirit week. They were disguised as Mario and Luigi on "superhero" day.

Express

Going into your freshmen year of high school, you are introduced to many different types of people. Fitting in is something many students attempt to do. But, then again... why bother? Expressing your individuality through things such as clothing, tattoos, piercings, or even hair, is a unique way of showing who you really are. Teenagers express themselves in numerous ways. You can tell a lot about someone through their style. Junior, Tibor Kmeczik said, "I love my cornrows. They're such a different look for me!"

Walking down the halls you see so many different people, it would just be boring to all look the same. When you see someone with a mohawk, a really different tattoo, or a new piercing, it draws attention to them. That makes them stand out and succeed in making an impression.

"I can't wait to get my tattoo," said Desiree Pirog, "I already know exactly what I want, I'm so excited!" Tattoos are a big thing this year. So many teenagers are getting them and can't wait to show them off. It is such a cool way to show the type of person you are and express what you like.

Sure, we're kids, and getting new piercings and changing our hair may just be a stage we're going through. Even if something goes out of style, or we graduate and move onto jobs or college, we can always look back on the different things we've tried and know we had a good time expressing our individuality.

- Jordan Marshall

Sophomore, Richard Sibya, puts his art project down to show off his tattoo. He said, "I love this because it means something to me, and I definitely won't mind it being there forever."

Chelsea Rice couldn't wait to show off her tattoo that she got done at a tattoo party. When asked if it hurt, she joked, "Not really, it was more annoying than anything. I was actually more focused on what I wanted for my next one." She sure knows what she likes and isn't afraid to show it.

Senior Kayla Glasson, shows off one of the biggest trends of the year, PUMA sneakers. Everyone from students to teachers have a pair. They come in almost every color and are extremely comfortable. Kayla said, "They are the most comfortable shoes I have ever worn! I wear them as often as I can."

It's obvious that junior Brittany Bourdo loves her earrings! Aside from her four holes and inner cartilage, she also has her nose pierced. Britt said, "I really want a tattoo too... I hope I get it sometime before the summer!"

Aaron Marshall, got his tattoo for his birthday. Aaron said, "I always wanted a tattoo, and I said when I got one, it would definitely be a cross." When asked if he thinks he will ever regret it, he responded, "Definitely not, I love it! They're so addicting, I want another one already."

THE BOYS OF

"My boys don't know what to do when you ladies come down here. This place is like a dungeon; we barely see light. It's hard scraping their jaws off the floor,"
Laughs Mr. Cantin reacting to the yearbook staffers.

COMP

The Boys of Comp come in all shapes and sizes, all colors and backgrounds, and are interested in all kinds of different things. In freshman year, the boys start off in an "in-between," not-so-sure-of-themselves stage. They are young and learning about all of the new things high school has to offer them. Then with a year of experience, the sophomore boys realize they aren't in middle school anymore. Fitting in isn't really a problem; now they are invited to parties, that is, if they aren't throwing them. With upperclassmen male juniors, you can find extremely dedicated boyfriends, growing athletes, and focused individuals. These boys are the ones who represent the school in most of its diversity. The senior boys get lost a little with senioritis, worrying about SAT's, applying for college, and trying to get as many scholarships as possible. Although finishing off high school with a bang is the biggest thing on their minds.

-Chelsea Rice

Michael Conner, Eric Fogg, and Danny Levesque show off their artwork made from tissue paper. The project took a little while to do, but the class worked hard and finished it with style.

"My advisory is great... we often do physical activities to get the group moving and active. Today we were playing a game with boys vs. girls, and the boys blew the girls out of the water," said junior Jeremy Shepard.

Brent Favreau, Corey Gilpatrick, ("Splinter,") Brian Forette, Sean McClelland, and David Wrzesinski took enough time out in English class to 'goof-off.' "Splinter good at class," grunts Corey.

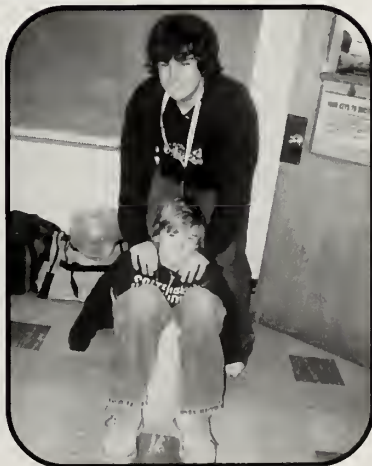

Senior Ezequiel Navedo is a star athlete, a ladies man, and an outstanding student. He also participates in the after school Hip Hop Dance team. Natasha Colon said, "He's a cool kid, and he has nice eyelashes."

"Oh no, it's gunman; blow him away," says Mr. Cantin. Sophomore David Facchini shows us the improper uses of the air compressor. Mr. Cantin laughs "These are the things we try to avoid while in shop."

Avid swim team member Mike Starke finishes his work in English 12. "English is important; it's my only requirement, so I need to pass."

Stuffed into a trash can, Mike Norton squirms and tries to wiggle his way out. But with Keith Harris as big as KING KONG, there is no chance for Mike.

In the Mix

Every year our school has a Winter Cotillion. This year's theme was "The New Year's Class Mixer." The title suits the event well because that's just what it is-- a night to take a break from school work, for every grade level to interact, to have a good time together, and to get to know each other a little better. This year was a hit. The event was sold out.

For most people, their night starts with their parents taking an enormous amount of photos before arriving at the dance. Many students arrived with dates, with friends, or even both. Other students also arrived alone. While everyone was arriving, the girls all "awwed" at one another's dresses and wanted pictures of everyone and everything. During spirit week or on a regular basis in school, the freshmen may receive ridicule from the upperclassmen, but on the night of the cotillion, class and age doesn't matter and no one seems to care how cool or not cool you are. Cotillion is a way for everyone to come together and have a good time.

After everything was settled and everyone found their tables, the food was served. We had a buffet with salad, rolls, green beans, potatoes, chicken, and pasta. Everyone also had professional pictures taken by Geniers and bought either packages or key chains. Around 9:00 the music began, and people started to dance and laugh the night away with friends.

All fun must come to an end, and as the last song began to play, everyone went on their way to go home. Although the upperclassmen still have their proms yet to look forward to, all the underclassmen have are the memories and pictures of the night until next year's cotillion.

- Sam Langevin

Stephanie Grzelak and Adam Perreault give young love true meaning. This couple is completely head over heels for each other, and nothing could easily tear them apart.

Who said you have to bring a date to a dance when you can bring your close girl friend? Jordan Marshall and Jessi Moylan went together and had a blast all night. They could have possibly had a little more fun than anyone else there.

Senior boys and senior girls gathered together to take one last picture at their final cotillion. This is a happy but also sad moment for everyone.

Good friends Sam Langevin, Joselyn Comeau, and Jen Kalisz got ready together and took pictures before the dance where they enjoyed themselves and had an unforgettable night. Although they had a lot of fun, they are excited for their junior prom at the end of the year.

These three girls really know how to have a good time. All night long they spent their time out on the dance floor full of smiles. Savannah Phai, Kelly Partridge, and Natalie Asselin were full of laughter until the end of the night when it was time to go home.

Dances aren't just for girls to have a reason to get all dolled up, but it's also a time for boys to go out, have a good time with friends, and impress the girls. Seniors Brian Dooley, Paul Modzelewski, Manny Mundo, and Nate Belisle really know what to do to stun the ladies not only the night of the dance but also during school in the halls.

Hitting The Books

ACADEMICS

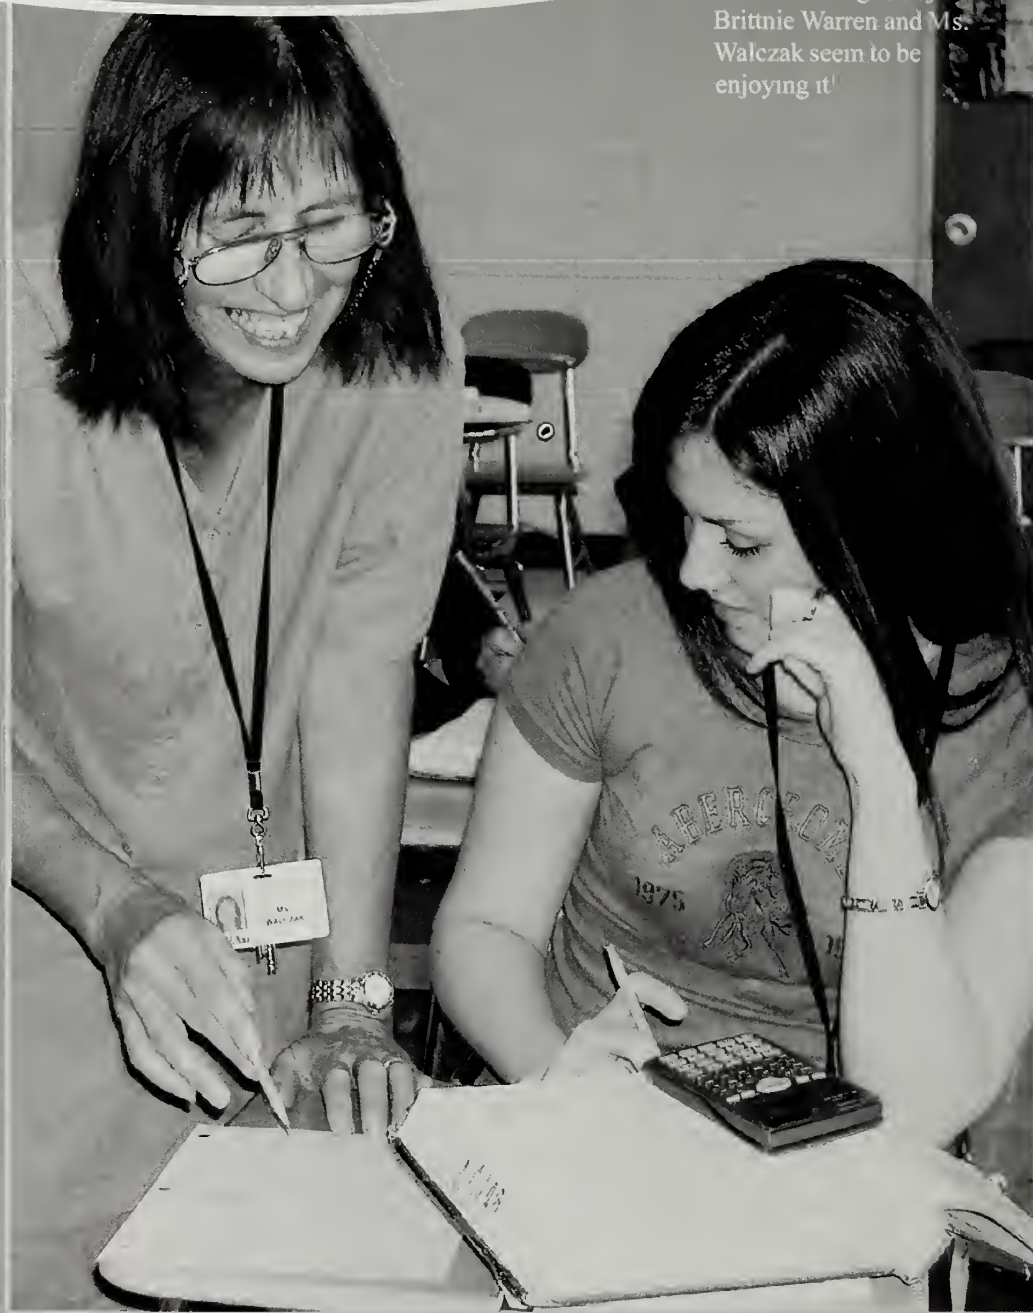

When freshman Mike Ryals was asked what was hardest about high school, he said, "It's all the reports, and essays, and books you have to read. It's nothing like middle school whatsoever." This is only one student's reaction to the academic system at Comp.

Academics is truly what a high school should be about, and here at Chicopee Comp we get down to business. Freshmen are busy with physical science. Sophomores are going crazy with geometry. Juniors are memorizing facts in U.S. History, and seniors are frantically making deadlines for their senior English projects. Teachers must be patient with their occasionally overstressed students, but sometimes their limits can be tested. Ms. Szostkewitz may be slightly disappointed when students do not work to their potential, but she finds it rewarding when former students return to thank her for contributing to their success.

Catherine Taliceo, a sophomore, loves her English class. She says, "Ms. Potorski makes it fun to learn grammar." Even though high school can be stressful at times, senior Ashlie Ayers, believes it is worth it "because if you do really well, you get to graduate and go on to better things." Well said Ashlie!

-Laura Cyran

Math is a tough subject. Brittnie Warren and Ms. Walczak seem to be enjoying it!

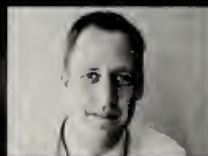

"I love my accounting class."

Danielle Fugere

"Wisdom can be gained from many sources-- even a high school."

Mr. Vanderzwaag

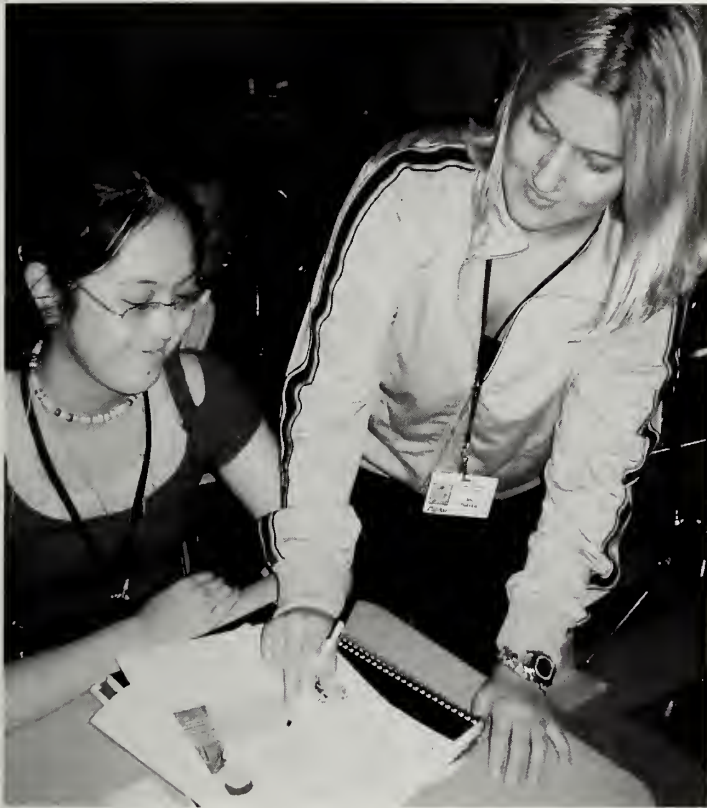

"Biology with Ms. Dold is really hard."

Tony Hufnagel

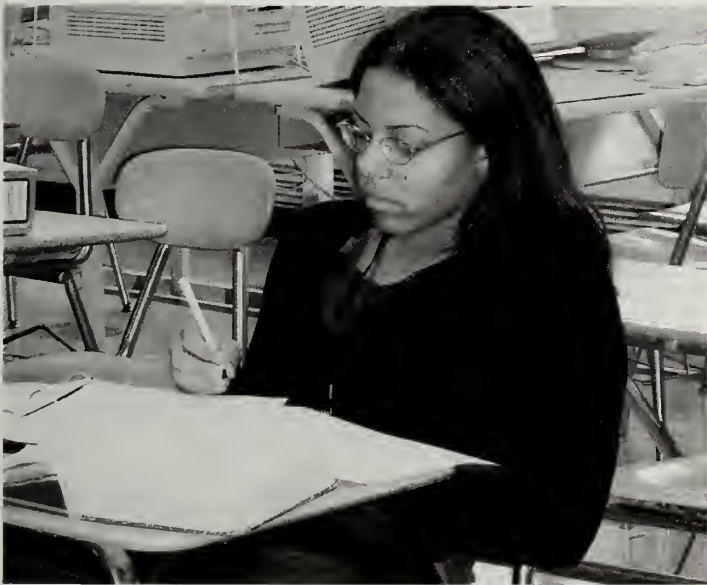

STAYING FOCUSED

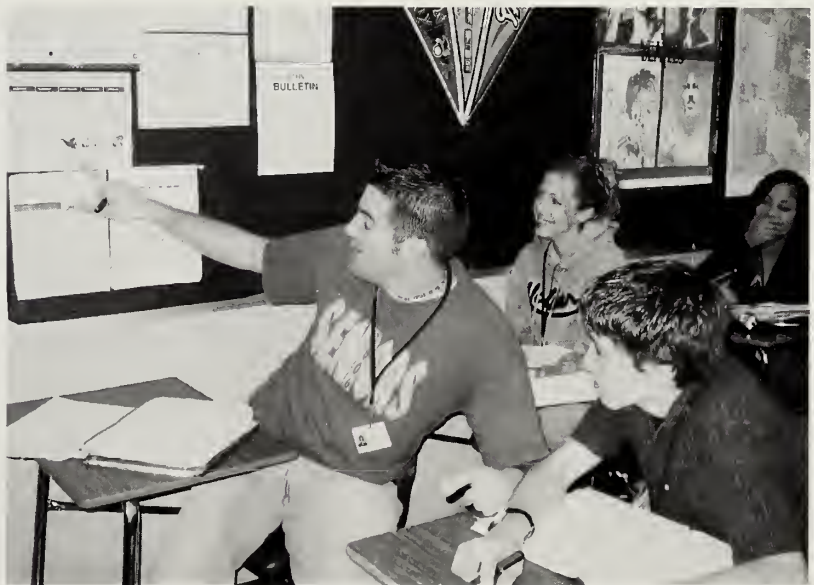

Ms. Thayer gives Debbie Lau a helping hand. In child development, Debbie earns health credits towards graduation.

This science class is focusing very hard on their lesson. Everyone seems to be concentrating on learning new and interesting things.

Nicole Baker, a member of the National Honor Society, works hard on her grades. Here, she spends extra time studying in school.

While attempting to pay attention in their fifth period psychology class, seniors, John Bauman and Nate Belisle find themselves sidetracked by the lunch menu. Mmm! Chicken Patty!

Dominique Johnson

Jen Kalisz

"I'm kind of happy high school is ending, but I'm sad at the same time because it's scary."

"Mr. Pinny, my history teacher, is the man!"

Advisory Makes a Difference

Matt Croteau, a junior, uses his time in advisory group to catch up on some sleep. After his nap, he feels refreshed and ready to learn the rest of the day.

Junior Chris Peek decorates Mr. Taupier's door. This year every advisory group competed to see who could decorate the doors the best.

Mrs. Hannah's advisory group gathers to talk about important issues. This is one of the great benefits of advisory groups since teachers can really help solve the students' problems.

Brendon Gibb spends his time in advisory talking with fellow junior Frank Medero.

Student Advisory groups have only just started here at Chicopee Comprehensive, but they are already making a major impact. Students and faculty meet twice a week in groups made up of either freshmen with sophomores or juniors with seniors. All teachers have a group... even administrators. During these advisory sessions, students get a chance to talk with a teacher about issues they are having in school, chat about recent events in the news, or play games. Another great advantage of the time spent in advisory is the opportunity to get to know new people and go to the entertaining cookout in June.

"The yearbook class is very enjoyable. It is also very rewarding because the final outcome of this year's book is going to show all of the hard work we put into it. I can't wait to see what people think," said Senior Steve Czupryna.

Deadline time is only days away, and Jen Tapp is vigorously finishing her pages. Mr. Brown shouts, "This is crunch time," to his period three class as the staff attempts to complete their pages on time.

A yearbook is one of the most important objects that you take with you from high school as you leave to enter the world. It preserves all of the memories that you made during the four years that you were there. It contains everything from the people you went to class with, to the teachers who taught you what you know. The sports teams and the clubs you were involved with, as well as the field trips you went on. This year's yearbook staff has put so much time and effort into making the yearbook more memorable than any other we have seen.
- Chelsea Rice

Although we have computers to do most of the work, it is still very important for the yearbook staff to learn all of the ways to handle pictures. These hands show how you manually crop and tag photos for a page in the student life section.

Senior Laura Cyran is this year's yearbook editor. In order to get this position you must submit a letter to Mr. Brown, the yearbook advisor, about what you think you can contribute to making the yearbook one-of-a-kind.

Assistant editor Jordan Marshall, and seniors Kayla Glasson and Chelsea Rice show junior Aaron Marshall what it takes to create an outstanding yearbook. Kayla said, "This class is great! It really gives me a chance to be creative and share my ideas."

A Helping Hand

Mr. Jendrysik finds it difficult to state all of a student's positive attributes in such a small amount of space. He tries to keep each letter creative and tailor it to the student who it's being written for.

"Mr. Jendrysik actually worked with me to better my chances of acceptance," says J.W. Wartick. He has already heard back from the college he applied to, and he was accepted. This fall he will be attending Concordia Ann Arbor in Michigan.

As an English 12 teacher, Mrs. Czupryna writes many recommendations. Although this part of her job is time consuming, she says that the best part is finding out that one of her students was accepted to a college.

Teachers often choose to go above and beyond their job description in order to ensure the success of their students. This includes doing their best to help students to get accepted to the college that they want to go to. Teachers selflessly spend hours of their own time preparing recommendation letters for their students that convey the most positive qualities of each pupil who asks for a recommendation. The efforts of these teachers and counselors are appreciated.

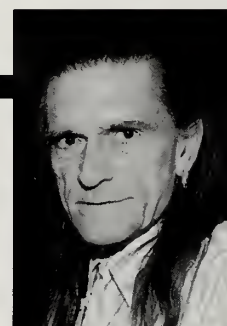

Ashlie Ayers hopes to get accepted into the nursing program at Elms College. "She stressed my strengths," said Ashlie about the recommendation that Mrs. Czupryna wrote for her.

Ms. Parzych, with her Spanish 1 class, is a very popular teacher. You will see her at many dances and shows her students put on. She says, "I try to go to games and plays as much as I can to show my students support."

"Go to Jail, Go Directly to Jail!"

Mr. Jendrysik is a likable guy here at Comp, but don't take his laid-back attitude for granted, he can be tough. When he comes across a couple students engaging in some PDA between classes, he sports a disgusted face.

Mr. Mashia is a memorable teacher in the mathematics department. He is also very involved with musicals and plays throughout the community. Even though his schedule is hectic, he takes as much time as he can to attend sporting events and dances throughout the year.

Enforcing the rules at Comp is a tough job, however, someone has to do it. There are many rules that need to be followed. We are lucky to have kind and patient teachers that take time outside of the classroom to keep our school a clean, safe place to be. For example, some teachers chaperone dances and school activities. Seeing teachers outside school gives students a chance to see the laid-back side of their teachers. Mr. Paquette joked, "Chaperoning dances is like showering with a brillow pad!" On the positive side, Ms. Parzych says, "It's a good chance to spend time with students outside the classroom."

HANDS-ON

The robotic cutting machine holds the plasma torch and cuts metal into a horse drawn carriage scene. The machine is being run by a single computer and some of the most skilled welders at Chicopee Comprehensive High School. This is one of the many new things that Comp has to offer Career Tech students. Over the years, Career and Technical Education has been used for students to apply classroom knowledge to hands on experience. The programs available to students help them to explore and succeed in their future endeavors. The many different fields include Auto Tech, Carpentry, Drafting, Electrical, Food Production, Horticulture, Landscaping, Machine Shop, Welding, Cisco Networking, Computer Aided Design, and Computer Aided Manufacturing.

Students this year worked a great deal throughout the city. In Career Tech, students get to show their talents and skills with their many projects. Drafting and Carpentry used their skills in building a new gazebo for Szot Park. Machine Shop and Drafting also collaborated and broadened their horizons by working at Westover Air Force Base on the "Airspace" program. Landscaping continues working at the old Chicopee High. Furthermore, Landscaping also helped build a new playground and put bricks down for the children at Lambert-Lavoie School.

Career Tech for the longest time has been known as nontraditional. As years go by and technology advances, there is more of a need for employees in these fields of study. Assistant Director Kozikowski said, "I would like to see every student in the district of Chicopee taking a required technical course, and I believe that every student should have the opportunity to explore any Career Tech area." Career Technical Education is a means of learning a trade that pays well and that is challenging. Career Tech is the future.

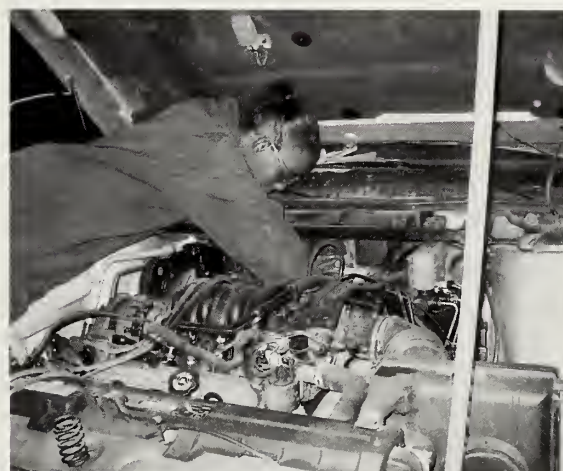

-Heather Salamon

Tyrra Minto and Anatolly Sosnin are working on a Cat-5e cable in Cisco Networking. They are learning how to correctly align the wires to go into the RJ-45 jack. Students also learn how to configure routers and modems.

Cianna Tripp is working on a carburetor. Working "hands-on" helps the students in Career Tech be more knowledgeable about auto parts and how to replace or fix them.

Ondreona Ingalls is working on a C-6 project. It's a cable project that consists of switching and constant feed power.

Hands on! Junior Jomarie Martinez is making a bread loaf for her weekly Compaccinos. Compaccinos brings a lot of the students and faculty in for lunch.

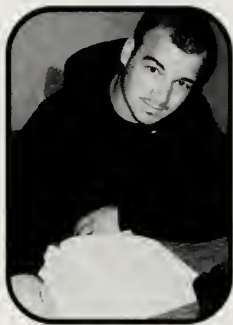

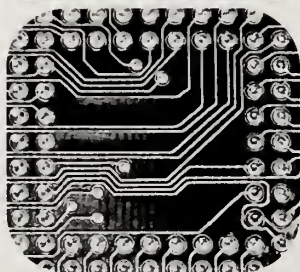

Wiring the Future

Electrical

In the past few years, electrical shop has expanded greatly. Four years ago there were around 12 to 15 students. Now there are many more - about 56 plus the freshman that will pick electrical for their shop.

Electrical is not for everyone; it's very difficult and requires knowledge in all academic fields as well. Reading manuals, using math, and applying science are equally important. The science of electricity is as crucial as knowing all of the codes that students need to learn from the manuals.

Andrew Mailloux is concentrating hard on how to connect this switch. He said, "the project challenged me and made us work harder."

Home technology integration is very much anticipated by both teachers and students. It's basically programming a house to do things that would be normally done manually. Hopefully one day they will be using the things they learned in this shop inside of their own homes.

-Jennifer Tapp

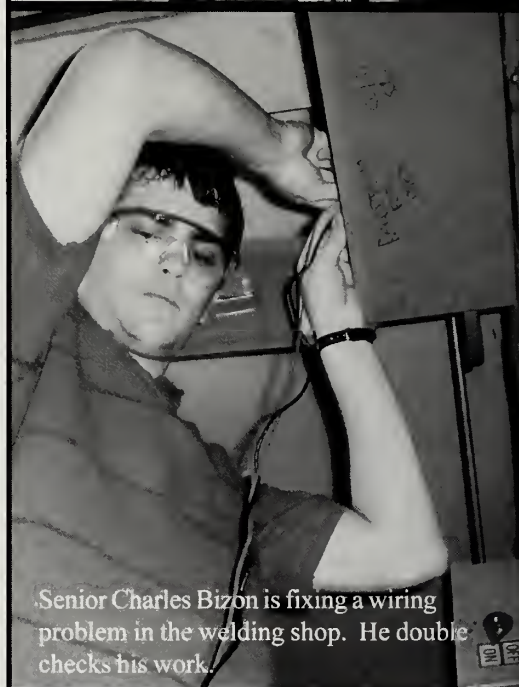

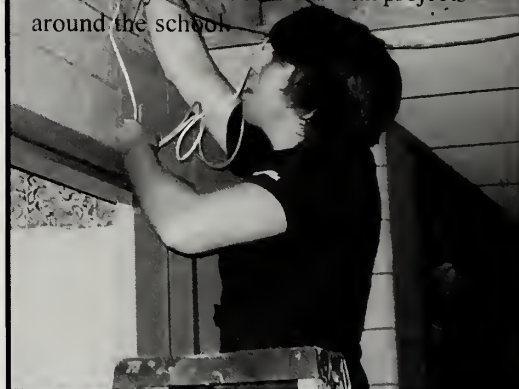

When his students got involved in the door decorating contest, electrical teacher, Mike Leary said, "this is the hardest they have ever worked." Free hand drawing the entire mural himself, Spencer Ward then asked the seniors to help fill in the color."

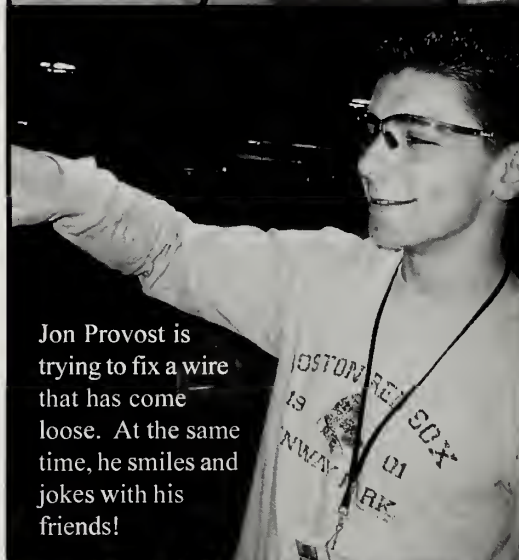

During the lecture portion of class on Halloween, these two seniors, Peter Soillis and Mike Long, show off their costumes. Their teacher, Mr. Leary, said, "this is the hardest they ever worked- putting together their costumes."

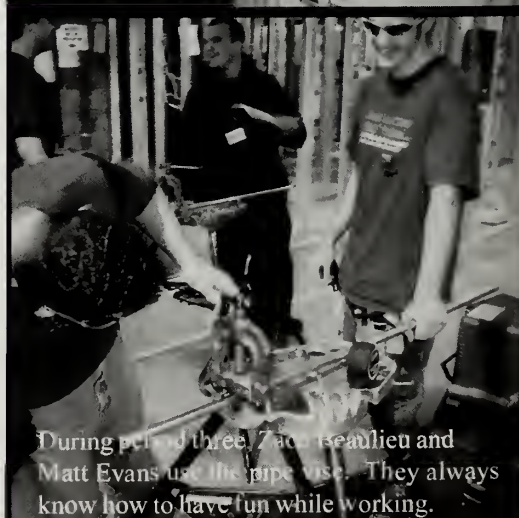

Justin Stevens helps out the school by replacing some wiring that has gone bad. His senior year will be filled with projects around the school.

Senior Charles Bizon is fixing a wiring problem in the welding shop. He double checks his work.

Jon Provost is trying to fix a wire that has come loose. At the same time, he smiles and jokes with his friends!

During period three, Zach Beaulieu and Matt Evans use the pipe vise. They always know how to have fun while working.

"I like building stuff. 'Boring' is finishing off and giving a polished look when drilling," says sophomore Justin Ostrander.

Kevin O'Dea may be new in this shop, but he definitely knows what he's doing. He is excited to soon be working more on the computers.

Milling tools requires precision, but Andrew Segarra makes it look easy.

Mr. Cantin is a new addition to the machine shop. He's now teaching along with Mr. Carroll who has been teaching it for five years.

Making Things to Make Other Things

Machine Shop

Having to work with machines that require a steady hand and a lot of concentration is difficult for some people.

The machines may be challenging to master, but the computers are even harder. Without having knowledge about working with the machines, there's no way you could be able to program the computer.

In machine technology, they make everything from the machines themselves to the tools that make the machines. They also help out with the electrathon vehicle project with the other shops and academic departments. If any one of the other shops needed a tool to be repaired, then machine tech would be the place to go.

This year they've bought a new cutter grinder which supports the tooling. Now, rather than having to ship out certain things, they can work on it themselves and save money.

-Jennifer Tapp

Tune-Up With... Auto Tech

Auto Tech. students work strictly on the mechanical problems of cars. They get real cars with real problems from real customers. Although the students don't get paid for working on the cars, they do get a reward, usually food! The students leave their customers satisfied. Senior Andrew Boryczka said, "There is this one man who brings his car to us all the time to fix different things."

Auto Tech. gets cars to work on from teachers, janitors, and students. They work on easy things such as switching tires and difficult things such as fixing a serious engine trouble. Cars are donated to the class. Mr. Bigda, a popular teacher who retired and then passed away, had his car donated to the shop. The students and their work are highly appreciated by many.

Senior Larry Dziedzic said, "It's cool being a senior because we get to do a lot more." He gets the privilege of moving cars because he has his driver's licence.

Sophomore Kevin McPhaul said, "If you don't know what you're doing, you could really mess up someone's car." He stated that all the students are great mechanics.

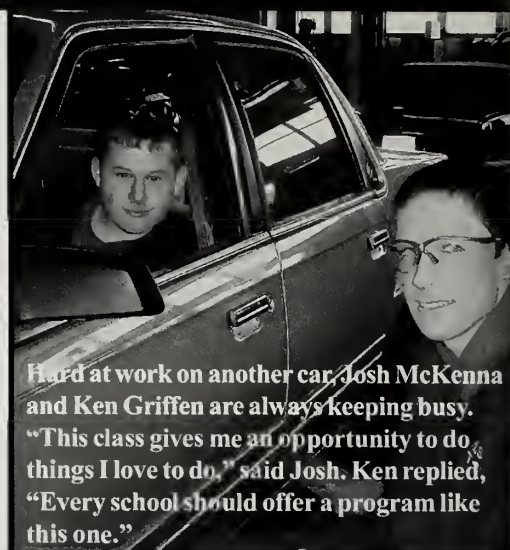

Sophomore Moses Pagon is working on rotating tires for the winter. He had one of the easier jobs that day.

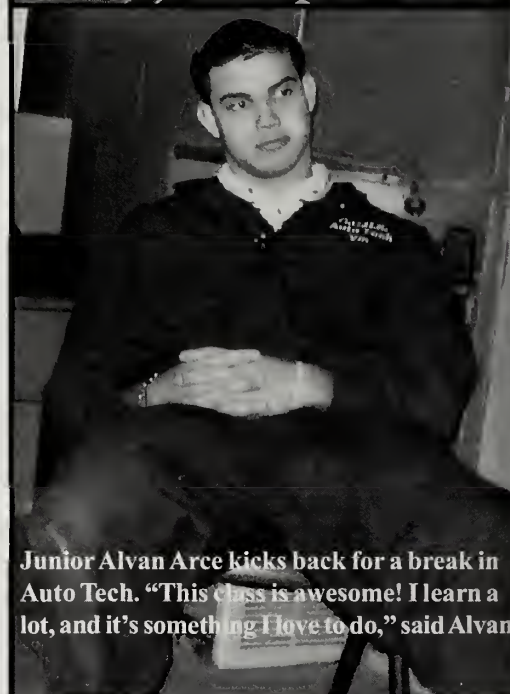

Junior Samuel Morales said, "These guys are fun to work with, we all get along great." This is Sam's first year at Comp.

"This is one of the best shops I've been in," said junior Alvin Arce. He would know, because he has lived in many different cities and attended many different schools growing up.

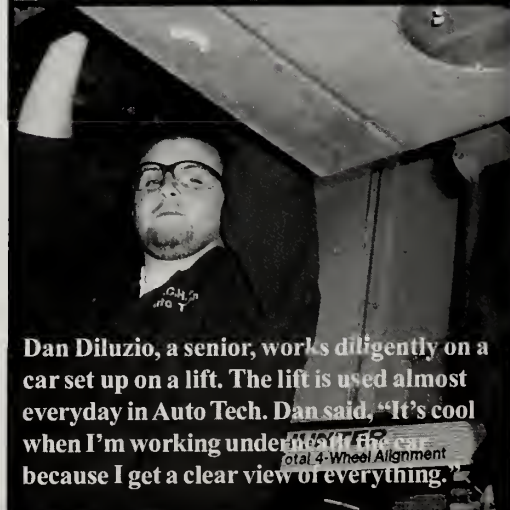

Hard at work on another car, Josh McKenna and Ken Griffen are always keeping busy. "This class gives me an opportunity to do things I love to do," said Josh. Ken replied, "Every school should offer a program like this one."

Junior Alvan Arce kicks back for a break in Auto Tech. "This class is awesome! I learn a lot, and it's something I love to do," said Alvan.

Two juniors show you can have fun in Auto Tech. Sam Morales and Ryan Taylor are also responsible enough to keep their safety glasses on. Keeping them on is the #1 rule in Auto Tech.

Dan Diluzio, a senior, works diligently on a car set up on a lift. The lift is used almost everyday in Auto Tech. Dan said, "It's cool when I'm working under a car because I get a clear view of everything."

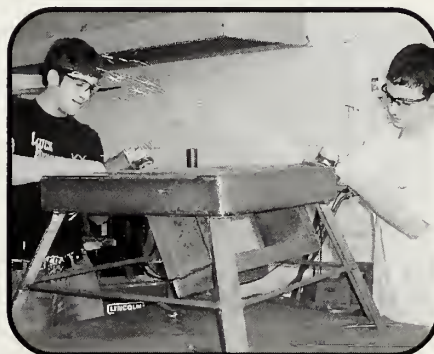

Senior Adam Bassett is hard at work wearing his protective clothing and most importantly, his face mask. "I always wear my mask when I'm working," said Adam.

Alex Delgado, a junior, shows off his face mask. When asked if it ever gets in his way, he replied, "Sometimes it can be annoying, but I know I have to wear it. It would be really dangerous if I didn't."

Sophomore Eric Osgood works on a project he designed a month before. He said, "The greatest part is designing something and then making it."

When asked how the juniors and seniors of the class get along, Junior Walter Kobylanski replied, "All of us guys get along really well. We're all like one big family."

Sophomore John Kukahiko and junior Chris Scheehser are adding a finishing touch to the project that they designed together. "I like working with people, you find make so many friends in welding," said John.

Welding isn't the only thing that the students do. These students are working on a winter theme for the advisory door competition.

A Job Weld-Done

Welding

"Coming into welding as a freshman was a new experience," said senior Brad Desmarais. Welding freshman year is just a test to see what the student is good at. As one gets into sophomore, junior, and senior years, he or she gets more freedom. One can start designing and making projects on his or her own. Everything made is done from scratch. The students have also fixed broken things throughout the school.

"Working for three periods straight gives us more time to learn and master different welding techniques," said junior Chris Scheehser.

When speaking of Mr. Bienvenue, one of the welding instructors, John Kukahiko said, "He is extremely helpful, and he knows a lot about his trade." The welding classes help out the other trades too. Making a piece for Auto Tech. was only a small part of what they contribute to our school.

Carving the Future

Carpentry

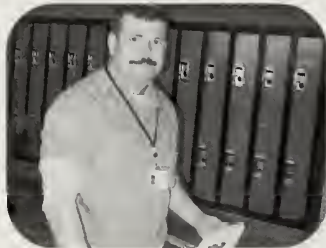

Carpentry is a class that many of the vocational students enjoy. They are taught how to make assigned projects and are then encouraged to make their own designs. It's hard work to shape the wood pieces to fit together perfectly, but the students manage it all with the help of the teachers Mr. Styckiewicz and Mr. Archambault. By the time they complete the course and graduate, they will be able to do almost everything a professional carpenter can do. Josh Quadrozzi says, "Carpentry is one of the best classes I will ever take in high school. I hope to further my career, and I have dreams of becoming the best carpenter around." Many other students also have the same goals. Kali Drainville said that this class will be the highlight of her high school experience.

-Jen Tapp
Amanda Kasza

Mr. Archambault demonstrates how to master the art of carpentry. He has been an extremely effective teacher.

Daireen Perez and Lindsay Galaneau stick together as they think of what to work on next. They often discuss new ideas with each other.

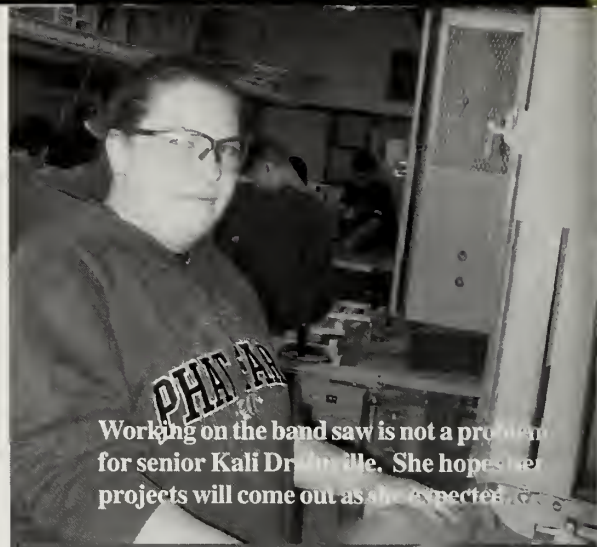

"Sanding is one of the things I hate doing the most in carpentry, but I have to deal with it anyway," says Rick Adams.

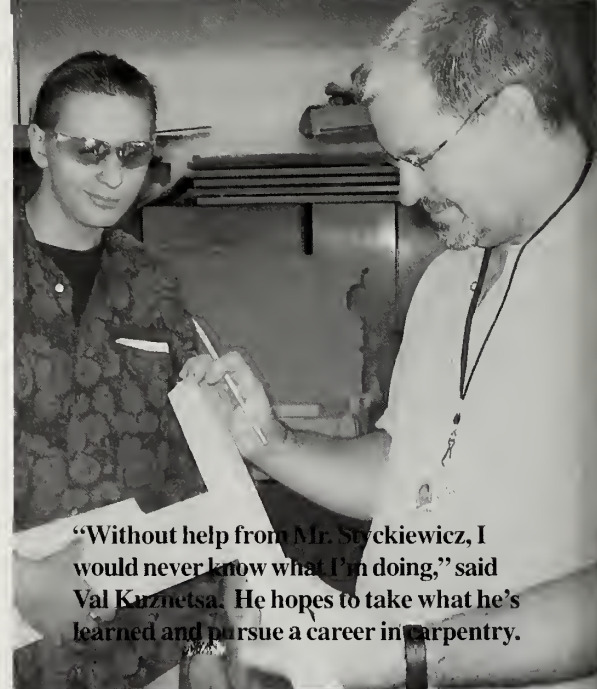

These carpentry students work together on their projects so it will get done faster. They help each other out whenever they can. Their favorite quote is "There's no 'I' in team."

Using the disk sander has always been one of Josh Quadrozzi's favorite activities. Josh is checking if his wood is smooth enough to use.

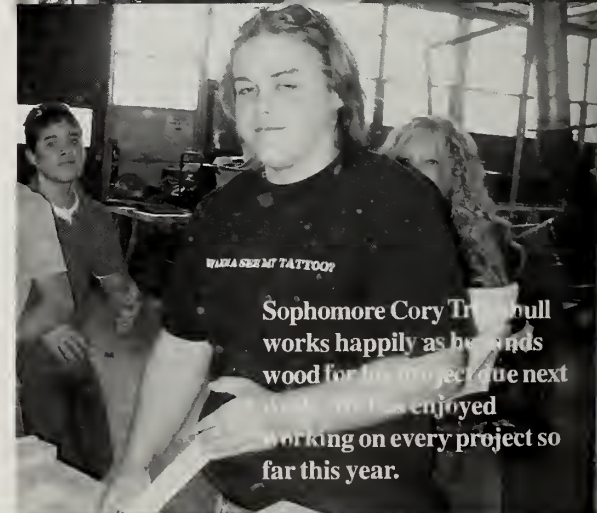

Working on the band saw is not a problem for senior Kali Drainville. She hopes the projects will come out as she expected.

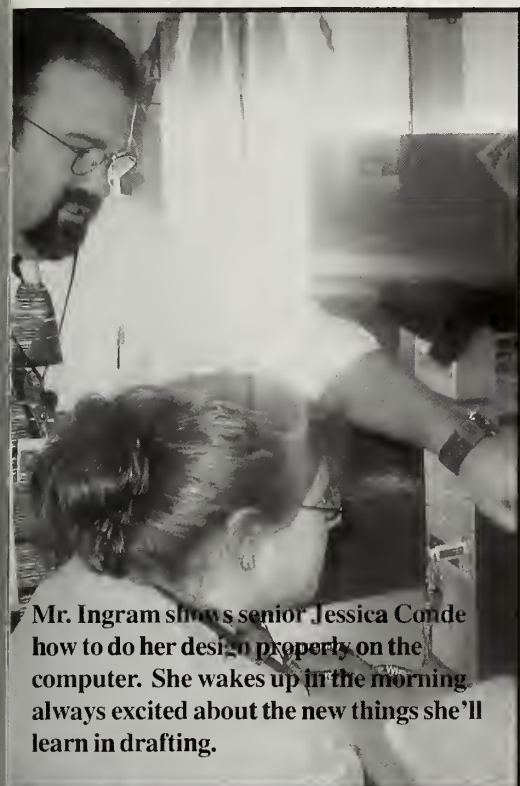

"Without help from Mr. Styckiewicz, I would never know what I'm doing," said Val Kuznetsa. He hopes to take what he's learned and pursue a career in carpentry.

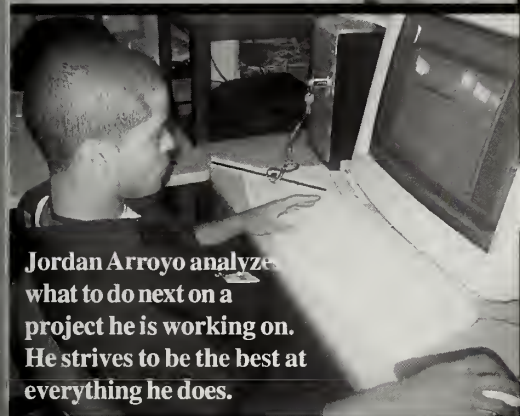

Jeff Welch has mastered his skills with the table saw. He always tries his best.

Sophomore Cory Trull works happily as he sands wood for his project due next week. He enjoyed working on every project so far this year.

Mr. Ingram shows senior Jessica Conde how to do her design properly on the computer. She wakes up in the morning always excited about the new things she'll learn in drafting.

Jordan Arroyo analyzes what to do next on a project he is working on. He strives to be the best at everything he does.

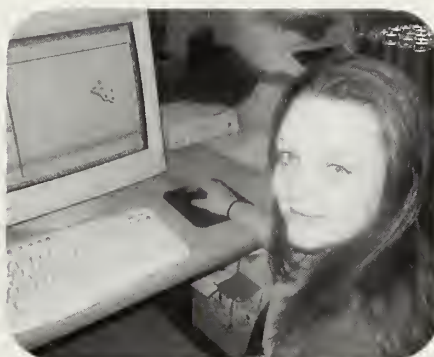

"I love teaching the drafting class. It's fun and exciting to see what new ideas the students come up with" says Mr. Grzelak, who is one of the two teachers.

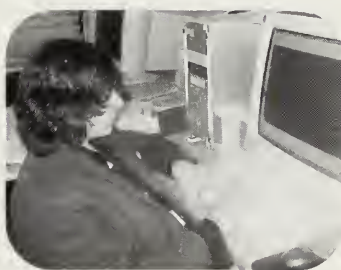

While viewing a sketch, junior Richard Pellitier thinks of how to recreate it onto his computer. "Drafting isn't only about computers. You have to take in the fact that it could be an actual building someday."

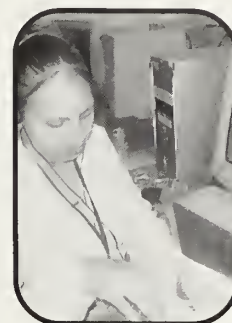

Keith Hart takes a break from working hard. He is interested in pursuing a career that involves the technology he is learning.

Senior Kim Serwanski is working on a program often used in drafting called Autodesk Inventor. She plans to go to STCC for architecture next year.

Designing takes hard work. Junior Adam Theroux has no problem finishing his work on time even though the project was tough.

Sam Lostaglia says, "Drafting can be hard at times, but it can be very useful. I really like it and hope to further my skills in the future."

Sketching the Way Drafting

Drafting technology is a program offered to tenth, eleventh, and twelfth grade students. Drafting students are introduced to both up-to-date drafting and engineering technology. Drafting students set up technical drawings used by workers who build spacecrafts, industrial machinery, manufactured products, office buildings, bridges, and other structures. The technical details of the products are shown through their drawings. The details are shown from all sides with exact dimensions, specific materials, procedures, and other information needed for the job. This year, they have been on a few field trips including one to STCC and other institutions. If you've walked down the halls and seen posters, they've probably been made by the drafting students. Several students have even drawn additions for people in the community.

MMM MMM GOOD!

Culinary Arts

There are many career tech classes. One of them is Culinary Arts. These students also run Compaccinos, the school restaurant. It is open to teachers each Wednesday and to students each Thursday. Every year the seniors and sophomores set up the dining room and serve the people. They also clean up afterwards. In their junior year, they prep all the food to be served. The freshmen assist with prepping food as well. The freshmen are only in that class for one period a day, but in the second semester they are there for first and second. Sophomores and juniors are there for three periods a day. The seniors get the most time in the "shop" because they are preparing to go to college; they are there for four periods a day. Their work combines culinary knowledge with hands-on skills. For example, the midterm involves making a three course meal with their own menu. The final is a five course meal also with a unique menu. For a senior project, the seniors have to create their own meal and fancy dessert. Also, the seniors make all the centerpieces for when the teachers come into Compaccinos.

Sam Cervonayco is hoping to go to Johnson and Whales to become a pastry chef and open her own business or restaurant.

Kristin Fulbrook, Julissa Alicea, and Christopher Lonzo laugh over some private joke. What is that sound coming from the freezer?

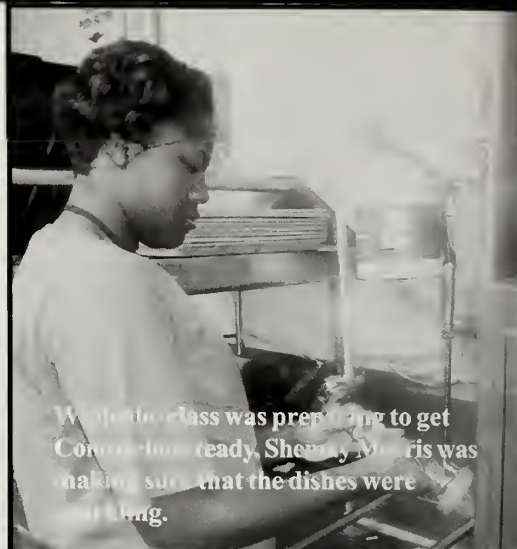

At it again, Shane Figerogua and Greg Powers find another way to work together by filling in the cream in the cream puffs made for Compaccinos.

The Culinary Arts Class always has fun and work hard at what they do. They do an excellent job preparing and serving meals at Compaccinos every Wednesday and Thursday.

Brenda Rivera adds icing to the cream puffs that the boys started. In this class they learn how to work together as a team.

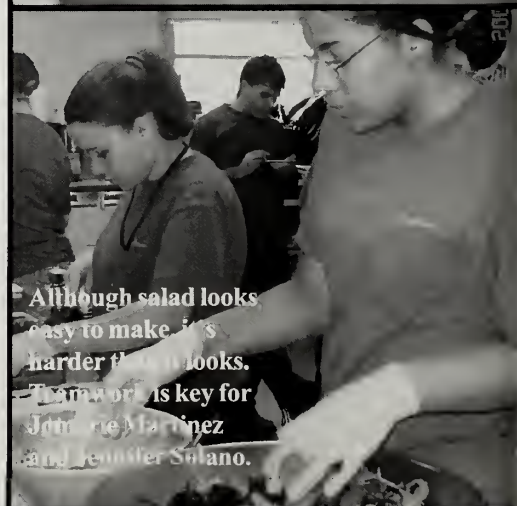

While the class was preparing to get Compaccino ready, Shane Figerogua was making sure that the dishes were sparkling.

Shane Figerogua and Greg Powers take a break from making the cooking room spectacular. These two boys always seem to find a way to make a little fun in class.

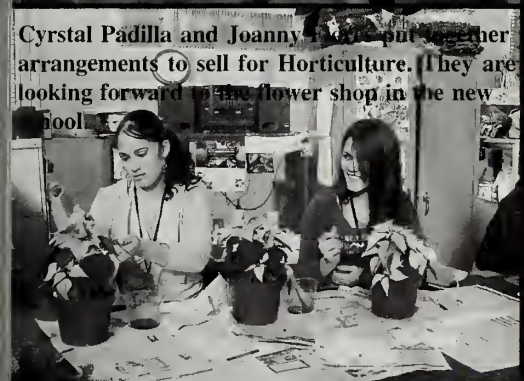

Brenda Rivera takes over the duty of sweeping every crevice of that area.

Although salad looks easy to make, it's harder than it looks. Tomato is key for Jennie Martinez and Jennifer Salano.

Joe Deroiser and Brandon Howie work together to move blocks. "My favorite part about the class is working outside and also working with Joe," said Brandon.

Cyrstal Padilla and Joanny are putting their arrangements to sell for Horticulture. They are looking forward to the flower shop in the new school.

Jason Keeley is hard at work trimming branches.

The class shows that they have a lot of teamwork. They work together to push the truck into its correct parking place.

Craig Czuchra, Scott Patterson, and Jason Cienciwa all agreed that they love the new things they learn everyday, the community of people they get to work with, and the design program.

Jason LePage said, "I love this class, and I make so many friends! There is a lot of cool equipment to use."

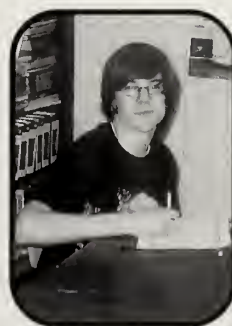

The landscaping class gathers around the tractor to show off how good they look with their equipment.

Mr. Mislak and Albert have a conversation. Mr. Mislak explains to Albert how to use a lawn mower.

Let It Grow Horticulture and Landscaping

Horticulture and Landscaping are two different classes that work together. In horticulture you work with hanging or regular potted plants and make arrangements for holidays like Mothers Day and Christmas. When the new school is built, they are hoping to have a flower shop as a part of their department. At this flower shop, they would like to sell flowers, balloons, and arrangements. So if you want to buy something for a special occasion or for your friend's birthday, you could.

Landscaping is about taking care of the outside. They fertilize, do leaf removal, and go off campus to other schools to mow grass, cut down trees, and pick up debris. One of the off campus sites they work on is the academy at the old Chicopee High building. They take care of the grounds. Some of the equipment they get to use in this program includes zero turn radius lawn mowers and leaf blowers. Some of their projects include making new sidewalks, clearing the snow around the school area, and cutting the grass. Students also have the opportunity to go into the co-op program.

Game Time

What is the best way to indicate if a team has had a successful season or not? The first thing that comes to many players', coaches', and fans' minds is winning, but there are many other more important factors. The rewards from being a student athlete at Chicopee Comp go far beyond just the win and lose records.

Every day after school our coaches and athletes work together to prepare for the upcoming week's competition with the goal of victory. During this process, these participants learn invaluable lessons in the importance of hard work, teamwork, and dedication. These skills will go much further than helping them in the next game; they will also help carry them through life.

Now on game day, regardless of the score at the end of the game, the athletes always perform at the highest level because of their strong preparation. As a result of the lessons learned in practice, the Colts will always be able to hold their heads up high when the game is over.

- Steve Czupryna

GO FOR THE GOAL

Senior Sean McClelland saves the ball and heads upfield towards the goal. Sean was the league leader in goals this year.

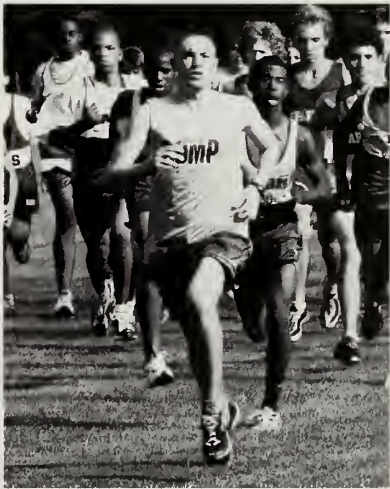

Junior wide receiver Keith Hart goes up to catch the ball as the Colts try to go deep down field. Keith has used his incredible jumping ability to excel in both football and basketball.

The Colts girls soccer team goes for the goal with the head ball on the strong cross. Despite many key injuries, the girls soccer team continued to work hard and have their best season in years.

Senior Nicole Hill battles defenders looking to move the ball towards the goal. Nicole's strong performance helped lead the Colts to a Western Mass tournament bid.

Steve Czupryna takes the early lead on his way to an easy victory at Forest Park. Steve would go on to lead the league in wins and become the first Comp runner to win Western Mass in over 20 years.

Ben Kwiatkowski tees off with a powerful drive down the center of the fairway. Ben has been a key contributor to the team for years.

Steve Czupryna finishes strong at the WMass XC Championships at Northfield Mountain. With a time of 16:21, Steve won by 21 seconds to become the first Comp runner in 22 years to win a WMass Division 1 individual title.

Senior Ryan Baldwin battles through the heat during the first meet of the year at Forest Park. Ryan's tenth place finish was the second best for the Colts that day, and it helped power Comp to its first win of the season over Sabis.

First year runner Ryan "Captain Inappropriate" Mandell makes his way closer to the finish line. Ryan was able to lower his times throughout the year due to his strong work ethic. He was also able to keep the team loose with his timely remarks.

The Colts await the starting commands during the final home meet of the season. Comp gave one of its best efforts of the year that day and captured two wins in the tri-meet.

Captain Steve Czupryna gets off to a good start on the first hill at Northfield Mountain. The course is the most challenging in the region, but supplied no obstacles for this four year runner during the big race.

Freshmen Dan Roberge tries to hold off two runners closing in behind him at the end of the race. Dan has practiced hard everyday and improved his times dramatically during the course of the season.

Junior Joe Krzystofik pushes himself to his personal best time of 18:59 during a tri-meet at the Chicopee State Park. Joe's effort helped Comp take down both Chicopee High and Holyoke that day.

Setting the Pace Boys Cross Country

The Boys Cross Country team had a solid season at 5-6 last fall. Under the guidance of first year head coach, Tom Bousquet, the team was able to finish 14th at the WMass MIAA XC Championships and 12th at the PVIAC XC Championships. Both of these performances were improvements over the previous year. Coach Bousquet also instituted a new training program for this year's runners, which helped every member of the team achieve personal best times at the 5K distance.

One of the runners who had his best performances this year was senior captain, Steve Czupryna. Steve started off with a strong regular season including leading the league with eight wins and setting a course record of 15:44 at Comp's home course in the Chicopee State Park. During the Championships, though, is where Czupryna really made his presence felt. He took first place at both the PVIAC and the WMass Championships and a solid third place at the MIAA All-State Meet.

Other key contributors to the team included Ryan Baldwin, Josh Avery, and Joe Krzystofik. Ryan's 5 top ten finishes were an important factor during the regular season, while Josh's stepped up to finish second on the team at both PVIAC and WMass. Despite battling injury, first-year runner Joe Krzystofik managed 4 top ten finishes in dual meets. Both Joe and Josh earned Coach's Award honors at the end of the season for their efforts.

Covering Ground

Girls Cross Country

Lindsay Forrette is dressed for the chilly weather at the late season meet against Chicopee High. Coach Thayer runs along side her team to give them support and cheer them on! Although they did not win this meet, they tried their best!

It was a fresh year for the girls cross country team at Chicopee Comp. With six seniors, one junior, one sophomore, and two freshmen, no one was surprised that they were such a strong team. "Our team's amazing quality led us to put up a fight and beat large teams," said senior captain Natalie Asselin who describes her team as being more like a family.

Cross country is a demanding sport which requires hard training and extreme dedication. During their season which takes place in the fall, the girls practice every day after school for two and a half hours. Jodi Fairbanks, a senior and first year member, said, "The best part about cross country is when you finish a race and you know that you've accomplished something."

Another great part about being on a team like this is meeting new friends. Since there were many new people on the team this year, they did a lot of team bonding. Coach Thayer is very proud of this year's team accomplishments. "We had a lot of newcomers come out this season," she says. "The girls got many personal bests. Our record improved since last year." She is also happy with the closeness of the team. They regularly had pasta parties before meets and always dressed up on the day of a meet. For girls cross country, the year can be best summed up by captain Margaret Terkelson: "This year our team was made up of a lot of new girls, but they gave it their all and we had a blast!"

At a race at Forest Park, Stephanie Gryzlac gives 110% effort to pull through for her team. Cross country is very demanding, and it is a whole team effort.

At one of the football games this season, sophomore Rachel Craig performs a stunt in front of a large Comp crowd. Increasingly athletic moves are demanded of cheerleaders.

Senior captains Laura Cyran and Amanda McIntosh have fun at their very last home football game. After four years of cheerleading, they will miss it, but they are excited to be moving on to different things.

"GO COLTS!" The squad supports their favorite football team at the infamous sword game against Chicopee High. In a few seconds, the guys will be crashing through this sign made by the cheerleaders!

The COMPetitive Spirit

Co-Ed Cheerleading

At a Chicopee High vs. Chicopee Comp basketball game, the team takes a quick break from cheering.

The Chicopee Comp cheerleaders are not only an essential component of inspiring school spirit, but they are also an extremely competitive and driven group. Often at competition practices the team, especially newcomers, hear about having to “want it.” Many people are not sure exactly what this means. “Wanting it” is wanting to win and the extreme need to do your best. This can only be achieved by working even when you aren’t told to, giving 110% even when you have already been exerting yourself for hours, exceeding goals you set for yourself, and encouraging your teammates to do the same. At Chicopee Comp, every cheerleader is required to do this.

Between practices, games, competitions and other events, the team of 13 girls and 1 boy can spend anywhere from 9 to 16 hours together each week. “Cheerleading is pretty much my life,” says co-captain, Laura Cyran. “This team is more like a family to me.” She and co-captain, Amanda McIntosh, have been cheerleading at Comp for four years and have seen their fair share of team challenges. “It’s hard to do your best, not only for yourself, but for the others on the team who look up to you.”

They could never do it without the help and support of their coaches, Melissa Fitzgerald and Jen Maki. They are excellent motivators and even mentors to the 13 girls and 1 boy on the team. Coach Fitzgerald sometimes even gets in and stunts during team practices so she can truly get a sense of what they need help with.

Cheerleading season is both in the fall and the winter. So far they have cheered at every home football game and basketball game. Also, at the same time, they have been preparing to compete in February and March against other cheerleading teams in Massachusetts. In the past, the team has been strong, making it all the way to states in the 2005 winter season. They hope to make it that far again this year. With a lot of talent on the team, that is a definite possibility!

Junior captain Carly Siano practices wolf jumps on the beam before a meet. She didn't place particularly high at the meets, but Carly did set a new personal best score this season.

Senior captain Katie Jones runs through her bar routine before a competition. This was her fourth year competing in all the events and the first year she was able to execute a shoot-over, a particularly difficult bars maneuver. She performed well in her meets this year and set a new personal best all around score at Western Mass.

Senior Katie Jones, four year veteran and now captain of the Chicopee Comp-Chicopee High combined gymnastics team, received a special honor this year. She was named 2005 Western Mass Senior Gymnast of the Year. Winners of this award are selected by members of other Western Mass teams and all the judges in the league. This award speaks not only of Katie's exceptional athletic achievement but of her leadership qualities and upstanding character as well.

For Desiree Levesque, this wasn't just her first year on a high school gymnastics team, it was her first year in gymnastics. A freshman, Desiree competed in two events, beam and floor. Though she did not place, she did very well for a first year gymnast.

A newcomer from Chicopee High, Alyssa Mullin warms up on bar before a meet. Though a Freshman, Alyssa is an experienced gymnast, and she placed in the top three at each of her meets.

Tumbling Through a Rough Season

Gymnastics

The 2005 fall season was a difficult one for the girls on the Chicopee Comp-Chicopee High combined gymnastics team. They did their best to rebuild the team almost from scratch after losing four talented gymnasts from the class of '05. The new team consisted mostly of freshman girls from both High and Comp. Some had no previous gymnastics training of any kind, and only four gymnasts returned from the Chicopee Comp Senior Katie Jones and Chicopee Comp Junior Carly Siano were named co-captains of the Comp-High combined gymnastics team for the fall season of 2005. The girls had their work cut out for them; they started the season with an almost entirely new team and several girls with no experience, but they made the best of it and had fun.

previous year's team. Senior Katie Jones and junior Carly Siano, two of the four, were named co-captains.

The girls struggled through a challenging season, and despite their best efforts, they were unable to win overall in any of the meets for a 0 and 10 record at the end of the season. On a more personal level however, the girls did not disappoint, and Chicopee High freshman Alyssa Mullin, in particular, placed well in almost all of her meets. Captain Katie Jones expressed great pride in the team, especially the new girls who started the season without experience and improved notably as gymnasts; many reached their own personal goals for the season. "All the girls tried their hardest," she says, "We may not have won the meets, but we definitely had the most fun."

Senior captains, Katherine Paul, Nikki Hill, and Amanda Barrows take a quick picture before a game. "The bond that we had this year is like no other in the four years I've been on the team," said Katherine Paul.

Junior goalie, Kelly Schindler, had a fantastic season. She contributed a lot of hard work and dedication to the team. She worked hard at every point in every game. Kelly said, "I love the rush that I get going into every game that I play!"

The Junior Varsity girls also had a strong season this year. They are the backbone of the upcoming seasons. "I think in the years to come, the Comp girls are going to be unstoppable," said junior, Amanda Nowak.

Freshman Alexa Keable shows off her skills as she blows by rival team member, Chicopee High's Lauren Appleton. Being a freshmen playing on the varsity level is a huge accomplishment, and she sure shows why she made the team.

GOAL ! The Lady Colts Work the Field

With an outstanding record, the girls soccer team had a fantastic season. Captains, Amanda Barrows, Katherine Paul, and Nikki Hill, held their team together, taking them all the way to the playoffs. "I think the reason we had such a good season is because we were all friends, not just teammates," said Nikki Hill. This was the first time in the past five years that the team has made the playoffs. At the beginning of the season, we all thought that it was going to be a struggle, but Coach Carvahlo turned the girls around with his great coaching.

How close we were as a team definitely helped out. We weren't only teammates, we were like family. We spent at least six out of seven days a week together. When we weren't playing soccer, we were out late at night or just hanging out with the girls. We decorated our coach's house the night we made playoffs to surprise him the next morning. The key to our success was our fans' support. Not only parents but students and teachers were also there to cheer us on every game.

Hopefully, this was the beginning of many successful years to come with the girls soccer program. Amanda Barrows said, "I see nothing but more talent in the future, and I would like to say good luck to all of the upcoming girls!"

As their goalie, junior Timmy Thompson, was a big help to the team this year. When asked if it was a stressful position to play, he responded, "Not really, we all work together as a team. If the ball goes by me, it means it went by my teammates first. They understand and make me feel okay about it. I love my position!"

The Colts soccer record did not reflect all of the hard work and effort that they put into the season. There was a really positive vibe throughout the year, despite the scoreboard. The team as a whole was close and worked together to bring out each others' positive skills. Coach Coburn said, "The record from last year's season may not have improved, but each player individually has."

Being a captain is a very important job; you have to show an immense amount of leadership and always have a positive attitude. Sean McClelland earned this year's MVP and was the top scorer in all three leagues. When Coach Coburn was asked about Sean Hurley, he responded, "I have nothing but good things to say about Sean, what a great team player!" Junior captain Josh Malone has a great attitude towards the sport, he has been on varsity for all three years and is the only captain announced for next year's team.

The Colts put together a sixteen man varsity squad and a young but developing junior varsity team. Their lack of players was a major reason for their record. Junior Mike Cantin said, "We brought it to every single game and stayed competitive all year; we just came up short a lot." The Colts may not have left the season with a first place trophy, but instead left with great friendships, and a greater love for the sport than ever before.

Sophomore, Jack Senecal, making an offensive move up the field. Jack said, "We all practice really hard and try our best in every game." Playing varsity this year has definitely improved his skills, and he plans on playing soccer throughout his high school career.

The golf team captain, Sean Bergeron, putts for par! "A mix of concentration and relaxation is one of the most important things you can do when you're putting," says Sean.

Senior Matt Dunphy focuses on his next putt. He is a great asset to the team, and his skills will be missed after he goes to college next year.

The youngest player on the golf team is Joe Chapdelaine. "My teammates were very helpful and gave me some good advice. I am going to continue playing golf until I graduate in 2009," says Joe.

"Sean and I tried to make this season the best it could be. My opponents were intimidated by my sunglasses, and I created a mental edge over them to win every match," says Ryan Dube.

The presence of the seniors on the golf team has been a benefit. They lift the spirits and have a positive influence on their teammates. We hate to say goodbye, and when they graduate the golf team will miss them.

Colin Boone, a senior, spots his ball on the green. He has improved a lot from last year. The coach and even his teammates were very proud of him.

"Four!" yells out Lee Racine as he tees off. He didn't expect his shot to travel as far as it did. It was his best shot of the day. Lee finished out the hole with a birdie.

Ben Kwiatkowski's last year on the golf team has been his favorite. "It's been awesome playing on this team, and I'll really miss it," he says.

Junior Chris Sawa contemplates his next shot. He's been on the golf team since he was a freshman and hopes to further improve his skills for his senior year.

Swinging Away the Competition!

Golf

The Golf team had an excellent season this year. They were led by a new coach, Nick Brown. "Nick is a younger coach who most of us can really relate to. It's cool because we can all bond and have fun together," said Aaron Marshall who has been on the golf team since his sophomore year. Captain Sean Bergeron says that he is overjoyed with the overall performance of his teammates this season and hopes that they will only continue to improve for next season.

Over the course of this season, the golf team has improved in every aspect of the sport. They also had some new uniforms to go with that new attitude.

The coaches and the athletes agree that this season is one of the best that they've ever had. One major factor is that they practice every day. They play their hardest whether it's an actual match or just a practice. "The team was really close and goofed around a lot, but we got the job done," said Ben Kwiatkowski. They strive to be the best that they can and hopefully next year will be even better.

There's No "I" in TEAM

Hockey

The Comp Varsity Hockey Team completed its best season since 2001 with a 15-5-1 record, a Fay Wright Division Championship, and another trip to the Western Mass Tournament where they advanced to the quarterfinal round for the first time since 1998.

The Colts were led by six seniors who will be missed after contributing to the varsity hockey program for four years. Kevin Waller (14-15-29) led the team and the league in goal scoring with 14 tallies when he suffered a broken leg halfway through the season, but linemates Sal Boncore (20-33-53) and Lee Racine (17-20-37) carried on with 20 and 17 goals respectively. Both finished their careers with more than 90 points. Colin Boone led all defensemen with 6 goals and 13 assists while Wade Eckert supplied a solid physical presence on the back line. Jay Lafleur finished his career as the top rated starting goaltender in the league with a 91% save percentage and a 2.56 goals against average.

Highlights of the 2005-2006 season include three shutout performances by Lafleur including crucial victories, 1-0 over Turners and 2-0 over Belchertown during the stretch run. Two 7-4 victories over crosstown rival Chicopee High also highlighted the Colts' championship run, especially the second win on the final day of the season with the league title at stake. Led by four point performances by both Lee Racine and Sal Boncore, Comp scored four first period goals and added two more in the second period, leaving no doubt about city bragging rights or their first Fay Wright Division Championship in five years.

The hockey team should continue its winning ways next year with the return of thirteen lettermen who made significant contributions to this year's championship season:

He was everything a captain should be, whether he could play or not. Kevin said, "I love hockey, and even though I can't play, I have to be here to support my team."

Seniors

There was a group of six seniors on the team this year. It is always sad to watch them play their last game, especially when you have a group as close as these guys are. "I love the game, but what I'll miss the most is the friendships I've made with my teammates," said senior Wade Eckert.

Chris Scheehser, junior, joins in a group huddle to celebrate after Comp scored a goal. Every time a goal is scored the team comes together to hype each other up. Chris said, "I always tell my friends to 'sit back and watch!' I hope we make the game as fun to watch as it is to play."

Senior co-captain Sal Boncore says, "Being the player to begin a game in the face-off gives me a big rush. It's where everything starts, and you play hard from that point until the final buzzer." He, along with five other seniors, will be greatly missed next year.

Senior captain Mike Starke pushes himself to the limit. Mike Starke has made swimming a life-long habit.

The boys and girls swim team congratulate themselves after another victory at Chicopee Comp's pool. After a season full of away games the team feels proud to get a win in their own pool. Wins are such an accomplishment for the team especially ones they get at home.

Senior captain Alyssa Horton gives her strongest effort during this season. As a member of Chicopee Comp's swim team for all four years she is an invaluable asset to the team.

Diving In Swimming

Almost three weeks before the first meet of the new season, the swim team took to the waters. About half of the members on this year's team were newcomers, but through hard work, determination, and dedication they managed to lower their finish times and become skilled members of the team.

When asked what he attributed the outstanding season, Mr. Mercer replied: "The boys had great frontline swimmers, and the girls were very enthusiastic."

Comparing last year's record of 3-10 to this year's record of 7-6, one sees dramatic improvement; this could be chocked up to any number of variables. Whether it be new blood, team spirit, or good attitudes, the girls are certainly happy with it. Sam Cervanyaco said, "We always kept each other thinking positively, no matter what was going on."

This year the boys team was undefeated. With last year's determination renewed, they crushed the competition. "Swimming is diesel!," said Tony Hufnagel.

Showing Improvement

Football

The Chicopee Comp varsity football team finished their season this year with a record of five wins and six losses. After a disappointing year before, the Colts rebounded to improve their win total by two wins. Early during the very competitive season the Colts were able to win four of their first five games which included an exciting three game winning streak.

Some major reasons for this year's improvement were the extraordinary play of standout players Jon Provost, Nick Smith, Jay Lafluer, and Evan Berneche. Jon posted impressive numbers of 17 touchdown passes and 1,100 passing yards with the help of Nick anchoring the lineman at center and Evan as his number one passing target at wide receiver. Each player earned postseason honors from the Springfield Republican for their outstanding play with Evan and Jon receiving First team All-Scholastic honors for their excellent offensive seasons. Jay's strong play as a defensive lineman led to a Second team All-Scholastic selection for defense.

This year also presented the team with an interesting adjustment to make. Due to the construction of the new Comprehensive high school taking place on the teams longtime playing and practice fields the Colts were forced to find new fields to prepare on. The team also for the first time held its home games at Szot Park, which had always been the home field of the crosstown rivals. The Colts did their best to protect their new home turf though with solid wins over Greenfield and East Longmeadow.

BOYS AND GIRLS

INDOOR TRACK

One mile, two mile, 1,000 meters, more. To most people this is how far you are driving in a car, but for our indoor track team, it's all done by their own two feet. At Chicopee Comprehensive we have a combined girls and boys indoor track team. Our team is always together, from their practices to the meets. Practice usually runs around two hours every day after school, except for Tuesday. Most people think that track just means running, but that is far from the truth. Track also includes high jump, long jump, shotput. Some students prepare themselves for indoor track meets with a combination of stretching, relaxing, and getting pumped up. A few of the team members have said that they like to listen to loud, fun music before meets to get themselves hyped. "Screamo music helps get me ready, and I feel like it makes me run faster." says freshman Daniel Roberge. The indoor track season starts in December and ends in February and then the outdoor track begins. Members must stay physically prepared for track all year round. All of the members said they run every day, and some have said they run every day, all year round. Now that's dedication!

"My worst moment in track was probably having to run after being sick for two days. That was terrible." Says Dan Roberge.

Senior Katie Jones shows determination as she attempts to get her body completely over the bar in the high jump event.

Manny Mundo, Paul Modzelewski, and Timothy Day try to pace themselves as the race begins. No matter how long the race is the team members stand from the side lines and cheer them on. Practices become an important factor at this point in the track season.

Sophomore, Jaime Dever, just began track this year. "My friends were doing it, so I did too." Jaime says. He loved it and is very disappointed that he can't continue track in the spring.

Lindsay Leavy focuses on throwing the shotput to the best of her ability. The girls shotput, weighing in at 8lbs, might be a strenuous throw for some, but for track members, this is an everyday thing.

Faleesha Gonzalez, a freshman, says she enjoyed indoor track. This was her first year, but she plans to continue track in years to come.

"The girls had a lot of spirit. No matter what, they never gave up." says Coach Thayer.

Senior Ryan Dube blocks Dan Jette from Chicopee High to keep the ball in our possession and move it up the court. Ryan said, "I love knowing I contribute to the game and when I can protect another teammate it feels great."

On a fast break, junior Danny Benard sprints to the hoop to score another basket for the Colts. He always gives his all to the team, and brings it every game he plays in. Dan said, "I can't wait until next season!"

"This season went exactly the way we had hoped it would. Our team worked well together, and we played to the best of our ability each game. We are extremely proud of every person on this team, and we're going to miss being a part of it."

Dribbling the way to VICTORY

Boys Basketball

The boys basketball team proved that a lot of hard work and dedication is all it takes to succeed. As they struggled through what seemed like a long season, the Colts qualified for the Western Mass Tournament. With three senior captains leading the way, the boys were on the move. Captains Sean McClelland, Sean Bergeron, and John Bauman all agreed that "this was definitely a season to remember." Not only did they qualify for playoffs, they beat Northampton in the first round by a score of 55 to 50. Then it was off to the quarter finals. Opposing team, Commerce.

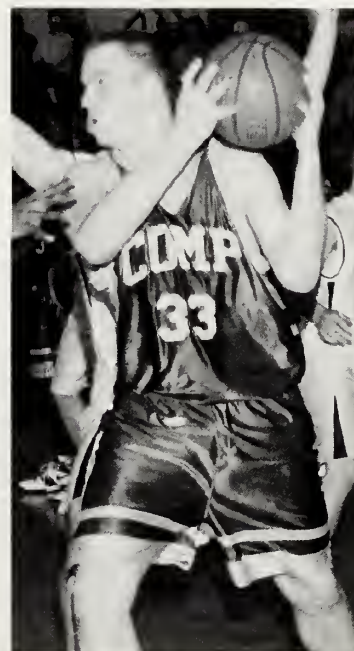

The Colts were close the entire game, and played hard until the final buzzard. Although the Colts couldn't pull through in the end, falling to Commerce 56 to 69, they put up a good fight. A fight that proved that team work and dedication go a long way. These boys gave fans a reason to be proud all through the season. Each game, home or away, the Colts fans were there to support the team. Great support, dedication and hard work played a major role in the 05-06 season.

- Kristin Rivard and Sam Langevin.

Sean Bergeron, senior captain, looks for an open teammate to pass the ball to during the first Comp vs. High game of the year. Sean said, "I love playing Chicopee High, the energy from everyone in the crowd makes me play ten times harder."

Senior captain Sean McClelland pulls some swift moves on a CHS player to make a break away and increase our lead. "We all look forward to playing Chicopee High, because it is so crowded and you know you have to put everything you have into it," said Sean.

Junior Whitley Smiley takes a shot from the outside. During this game, the girls basketball team faced West Side. They fought hard and pulled ahead in their second attempt to beat West Side.

Katelyn Jopson sprints after the Chicopee High player to get the ball and score one for her team. She defends her home turf. This year is Katelyn's first year on Varsity. She wanted to make a big impact during her first year.

Julianne Labrecque, concentrating on getting the ball to her teammate, takes a step forward and passes. Julianne is a second year Varsity player. She has been playing three years and has even more room to improve.

Katherine Paul throws the ball to her teammate, Marissa Montemagni. Marissa, a varsity sophomore, takes the ball down the sideline, hoping to score. Katherine Paul is on guard to assist her teammate.

Senior Captain Kerry Hurst competes in a "jump ball" against the Pacers. While Laura Boone braces herself to assist Kerry, the crowd loudly cheers them on.

During this game, Whitley Smiley amuses the crowd. Her new inventive dance moves don't distract her from the game. "Even though we did not have a great year we definitely had team spirit."

Spirit Is All That Matters

Girls Basketball

Though the girl's basketball team did not have a successful winning season, the girls tried their best. The Varsity coach, Mr. Vyce said, "The Lady Colts fought through a difficult independent schedule in the first half of the season to become a very competitive team in the Suburban League." Seniors Kerry Hurst and Katherine Paul were this year's captains and did their best to set a good example and have great team spirit. The team pulled through during tough games and assisted each other. Katherine and Kerry agreed, "Our team is extremely close, and whether we won or lost, it was never anyone's fault. We won as a team, and we lost as a team." They tried their best in every single game, especially the CHS game. Katelyn Jopson said, "Every year the team has gotten better. This year we were only one game away from making the tournament. We were all really close, and I love each and everyone of those girls so much."

Their standards were set high, and they had an immense amount of perseverance. However, their abilities were not as up to par as the other teams' were. Despite their losses, the team moral stayed high and they kept pushing through.

Setting Up For Next Year

Girls Varsity Volleyball

Melissa Clark spikes the ball and scores a point for her team though a member of the rival team reaches to block it. As a four-year veteran and one of three captains, Melissa was a big part of the team this year.

After an undefeated season last fall in 2004, the Chicopee Comp Girls Volleyball team was forced to start over again. Last year's team was made up largely of seniors and underclassmen, leaving only a few experienced juniors to start off the new year as seniors. And a rocky start it was. Many members of this year's team were signing up for something new, bringing little or no volleyball experience with them.

The new varsity team consisted of only five upperclassmen girls, four seniors and one junior; six sophomores, two who played half and half between varsity and JV and two freshman, one of whom was also a half and half player. The large number of underclassmen girls on this years team meant that many of the girls did not know each other. It took many weeks of hard practice for the girls to learn to play together as smoothly as those from last year's team were accustomed to. In fact, it took most of the season before the girls were able to pull it together and begin to win matches.

Summing up the season, senior Erin Seifert who, along with fellow seniors Christie Seigny and Melissa Clark, holds the title of captain says, "It was hard for old team members to go from an undefeated season to a predominantly losing season where we fought hard to stay in games. But we worked hard and learned how to work together, and we pulled through in the end because we built strong bonds and had a lot of fun."

Though this season was disappointing, the girls are confident that they have built a strong team for next year.

-Melissa Desmarais

"It may not have been a huge winning season, but we all won because of the friendships we built and the fun we had together."

-Erin Seifert

Jumping into the air, Erin Seifert, a strong middle hitter for the Colts, reaches out and spikes the ball for a kill. As another one of the captains, Erin played an important role in helping to rebuild this year.

As setter for the Colts' offense, Nicole Klein serves the ball for an ace. Missing part of a season kept Nicole out of the captain's slot, but as a senior who had been there from the beginning, she was still a leader of the team.

Christie Sevigny, Melissa Clark, Erin Seifert, and Nicole Klein are the only four seniors on the varsity team this year. These girls have been playing together for four years now and though sad to see it end, they enjoyed their final year as teammates.

CLUBS AND ACTIVITIES

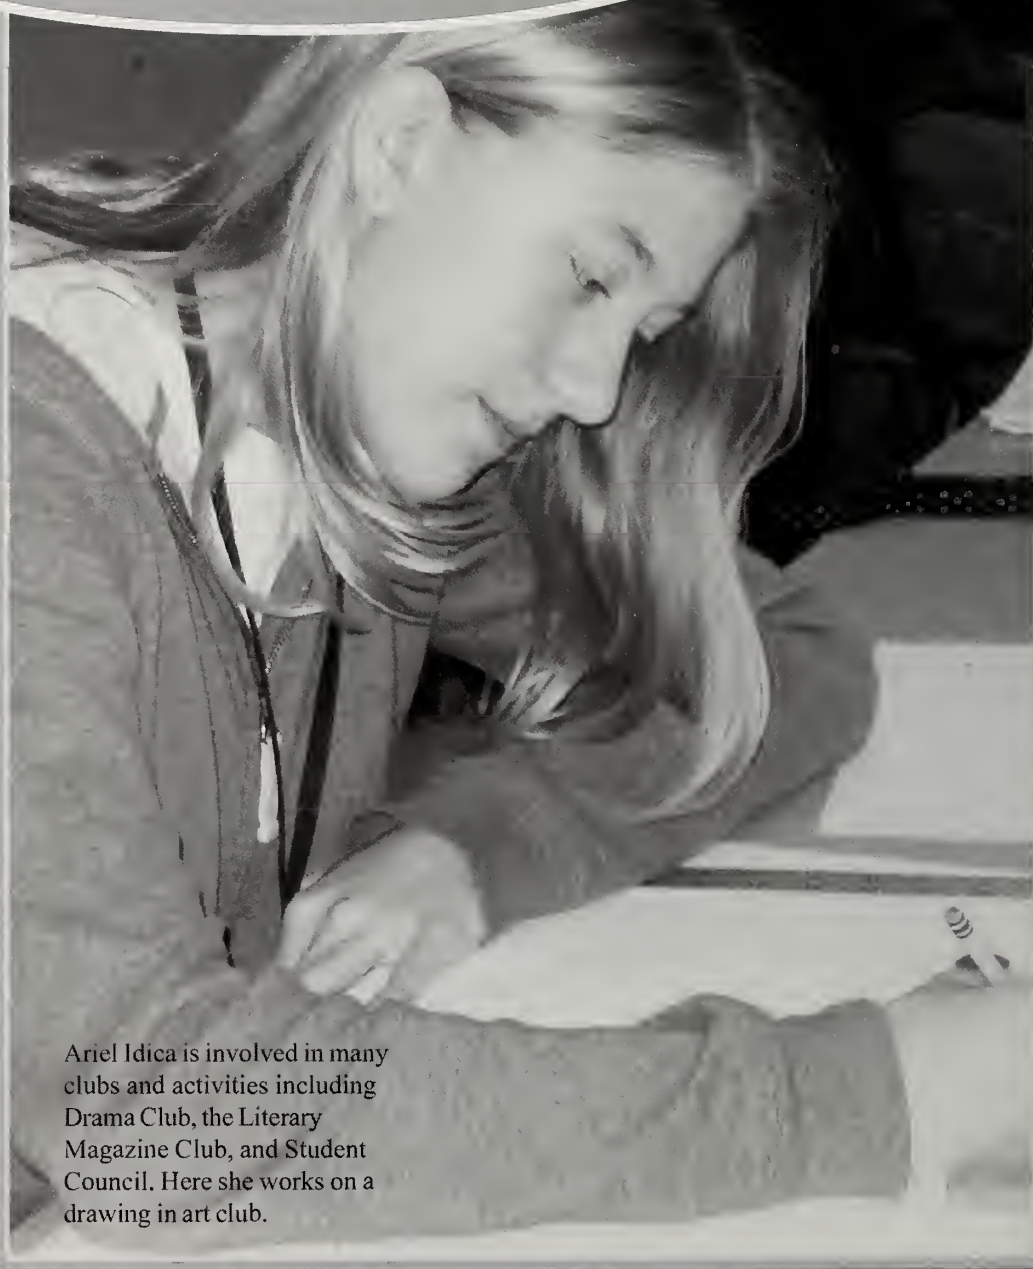

If you think education consists of academic courses only, think again. Some interests are best explored in clubs and activities. For many students, clubs afford the opportunity to participate in something especially meaningful to them. "It prepares you for the future. I joined the Art Club because it is something I want to major in," explained Danielle Smith.

It also gives kids a chance to hang out with friends and meet new people. "Not only does it look good on a college application, but it gives you a chance to express your personality," Ilona Kravchenko exclaimed.

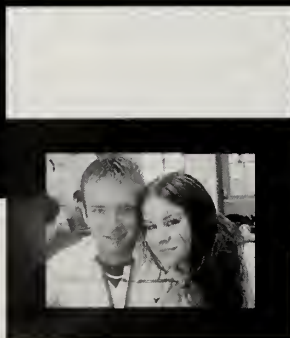

A club or activity might just spark something in a person that they will pursue in the future. For example, Dan Lafond, a former drama club member, recently did some substitute teaching at CCHS. It turns out he is now a theater major in college.

One club that has really taken off this year is the Hip Hop Dance Club. They perform at various games and rallies and have attracted a lot of attention and increased membership. They, like people in all clubs and activities, have experiences that are unforgettable.

-Lisa Letendre

Ariel Idica is involved in many clubs and activities including Drama Club, the Literary Magazine Club, and Student Council. Here she works on a drawing in art club.

Senior Justin Stevens looks over some of the papers that were passed out during a Student Council meeting. He is one of the many students who helps out during Spirit Week and other events throughout the year.

Jennifer Levesque works on one of her many artistic works during Art Club. Jennifer's notebooks are full of drawings. In Art Club her creative side gets a place to grow.

Christie Sevigny writes down information she will need to get organized for Student Council. She takes her work in that club very seriously.

Junior, Lori Letendre reads and checks off the events she wants to do for Spirit Week. She helps organize one of the many events that makes the week fun.

Art Club And Literary Magazine

The art club is a great way for students with a creative aptitude to get together and share ideas after school. Ms. Fahey helps these students to improve skills in art and even creative writing.

Many students in the art club, such as senior Kelly Partridge, plan on majoring in art when they go on to college. Some just enjoy the relaxation that comes with art and writing.

"I chose to paint a triptych of orchids because I thought it would be an interesting piece of work to put in my portfolio," says Kelly Partridge about her latest painting. Kelly is working on her portfolio to send to Westfield State College. She plans on majoring in art next year.

"It's a good way to put a portfolio together if you don't have that much time, or you could just hang out and draw with your friends", says art club member Bethannie Freeman.

A collection of art, poetry, and short stories created by students is also published. This collection is called the Literary Magazine, and it is published annually. It is a way for students to be recognized for their talents.

-Laura Cyran

Ms. Fahey delightedly shows off this beautiful watercolor by one of her students. The painting had been recently completed by Rachel Purcell.

This painting by class artist Danielle Smith is displayed in the art room. It is not nearly as impressive in black and white as it is in color!

This dazzling painting by Bethannie Freeman is eye-catching. "It was hard to mix the fluorescent colors", says Bethannie.

Melissa Clark, Theresa Robitaille, and Megan Deroche spend their spare time in the art room. These girls are all photography students as well as artists!

Losing You

A poem by sophomore Kyle Milledge

Your fading from me, like a light at night. Your disappearing right before my eyes. Tell me where has our communication gone? When I hold you close, it feels like your falling loose.

The love we shared is breaking away. The scent of betrayal is in the air. I'll never know where we went wrong. You don't have to tell me 'cause girl it shows that I'm losing you.

Like the water in the well, it's drying up. Like the mist in the mountains, it's foggy and unclear.

You've put me through the test and found out I was the best, but now your gone searching through the rest.

The love you've been giving is losing its glowin'. When I peer into your eyes, I can see the shadow of another guy. Our love is fading, oh its fading in and out. Emotions are high. The feeling to lie. Fight after flight, I'm losing my sight. It feels like I'm losing you.

This self portrait by Alexandra Moquin isn't quite finished. It will be amazing when it is done. She is inspired by Japanese-style art.

Kyle Milledge, a sophomore, is very modest about his poetic talent. He is the author of "Losing You", the poem featured to the left.

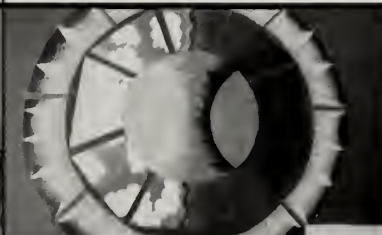

"Ooo! Look at that one!", says Ms. Fahey. Stephanie Sujat is making a sculpture of a Greek goddess. She is very talented!

This piece of art is called a mandala. It was created by senior Kimberly Serwanski in art class.

"It's a lot of work, but it's really fun. I'm going to be disappointed when I finish it" says Jacinda Taft, "I might make another".

This art club member, Megan Deroche, is working hard on this painting. right now it looks like an eye, but when it's finished it will be a bird.

Taking Charge

Being a class officer is a huge responsibility. As a freshman, you have your first chance to run for office. Students sign up, and their peers vote for who they want to win. Everyone must re-run the following year if they still wish to be in office. Every officer is extremely important and has many duties they must fulfill. Class officers do numerous things for their class. For example they organize dances, run candy sales, and plan class trips. They also collect class dues, run assemblies, and are always open to answer any questions their peers may have on a situation. Officers hold meetings before and after school to talk about upcoming events-- ones that will make everyone's high school years a little better.

"The Senior officers have worked really hard on making spirit week unforgettable for the whole school," said class advisor Ms. Pavoni.

Putting away books isn't as easy as it seems. You need to make sure everything is in perfect order. Jody Fairbanks does a precision job.

Shh... Quiet

Library Aides assist students and staff by checking out and returning books, shelving books according to their assigned sections, and making sure all discs, CD's, or memory drives are scanned for viruses before any student or teacher uses them in a computer. They also maintain the library by keeping the tables, chairs, and equipment in order. Most of all, the library aides main objective is to set a positive example for other students by following the library rules. Students collect 1.5 credits based on their knowledge and comprehension of their goals and objectives of the class.

Amanda Barrows helps Jeremy Shepard on the computer while looking up information for a project he is working on.

Peer Ed students need to be comfortable with each other in order to teach younger students. They are a really nice group of students and work well together to become role models.

This group of Juniors and Seniors always knows how to make class fun even when they are hard at work. It always makes things a little easier and much more fun when you're in class with friends.

"Roll" Models

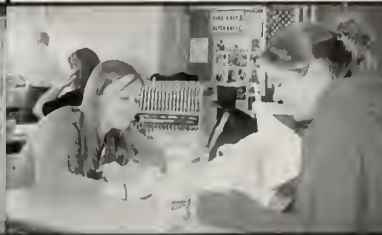

Peer Ed students can also be called role models. In class, they make up their own lessons about self-esteem, teamwork, how to take tests, decision making, how to say NO to drugs, and alcohol & tobacco to teach the fifth graders in the elementary schools. Peer Education is an excellent experience for both high school and elementary school students because it shows the high school students that what they say and do has a huge impact on the younger elementary students. Fifth graders are more likely to listen to peers about things rather than their teachers or parents.

Although Library Aides work different periods of the day, they all help with technology, research, and help keep our library in order.

This group of peer ed students write lesson plans for the fifth graders they teach at the Elementary schools during the week.

Drama

The drama club performed a Christmas play at the school. The play ran smoothly, and overall everything went well.

The drama club can be fun in many ways, but when it comes to memorizing lines before show time, it can become very stressful. The drama club, like every other club, meets after school and practices in the auditorium. The drama club not only has people acting, but they also need people to work behind the scenes to control the lights and put out the props when needed. Sound in some plays is also needed. Veronica Reyes said, "I love to act. This is a way to express myself in a way that makes me feel good, and it also helps me get away from all the real drama that happens in school."

Ms. Counts thanks the crowd for coming out to support their play and to hope that they enjoyed it.

Like any other club, the hip-hop dance club/team is organized and dedicated to what they do. They meet every Tuesday and Thursday after school in the cafeteria. This year he had them selling candy in order to raise money for uniforms. Officer Morissette also helped in organizing the club by assigning a president, Natasha Colon, vice president Natalie Colon, secretary Lizanne Padilla, and treasurer Jaleesa Shepard. The students make up their own routines and perform at school events. They performed in the beginning of the year at the football pep rally. They plan on performing at the Comp versus High basketball game and at frolics this year.

Academic Decathlon

Every year during the first and second semester, a group of talented individuals come together to prepare for a well-anticipated competition called the Academic Decathlon. They are split into two teams that consist of three categories: Honors ("A" students), Scholastic ("B" students), and Varsity ("C" students). These students compete against schools in a series of topics including Math, Science, Speech,

Supervised by Mr. Jendrysik, these individuals have the opportunity to meet new people, test their intelligence, learn new things, and most importantly, have fun! Tracey Williams said, "There were teams that took

GSA

The Gay-Straight Alliance, also known as GSA, is an after school program available for students who need someone to talk to. A lot of students today have enormous stress or suppressed feelings that they need to get out. Most of them feel that they are alone and don't feel comfortable talking to counselors. GSA was formed not only to spread awareness but also to help students cope with their differences, insecurities, and problems. "Many find it comfortable to talk to people they can relate to, and GSA is just the place," explains senior Jessica Conde.

In GSA, you are able to make unexpected friends. It provides an environment where people are accepted and supported.

In the act of trying to make others aware, GSA also plans the annual "Day of Silence." This event is designed to promote respect for the people who are too scared to show their sexuality and others who "came out" and became victims of hate Crime. GSA also participates in an annual march, the Boston Pride March, which consists of all the GSA programs in the area. The parade is a chance for gay and straight people to show support for diversity.

- Tyrra Minto

"I think GSA is for everyone. You can be yourself with no one making fun of you," explains senior Jacquelline Lea.

GSA is a place for students who need someone to talk to. It's a place to express your opinions, thoughts, and feelings -- To express yourself.

As Schools Match Wits

CCHS's own, Mr. Zdroykowski and Mr. Czaparowski were the advisors for our As Schools Match Wits Club. The rules to this competition are as follows: If you win three competitions, then you make the playoffs. However, if you lose one match, then you are out of the competition. Despite all their efforts and dedication of many long afternoons after school preparing for this event, they tragically were defeated by Hopkins Academy in the first round. Mr. Zdroykowski said, "We had a good team this year, but faced a tough opponent." Mr. Czaparowski also pointed out, "Hopkins Academy's whole school dedicates themselves to academics. Our honors classes are what their whole school is like."

Mr. Zdroykowski and Mr. Czaparowski are in the middle of quizzing the As Schools Match Wits club. They take a break from their busy schedule to train this club for competitions.

Eric Gray stated, "This club helped me get TV exposure and was fun despite everything."

Randy Belisle said, "As Schools Match Wits was a really fun experience."

Brian Dooley mentioned that "It was fun, but also really hard."

In order to gain all of their knowledge, these students hit the books very often to succeed in matches involving categories such as math and history.

Jay Santa and Jennifer Levesque enjoy playing games after school. This week they have decided on tic-tac-toe. Although it may not be everyone's first choice, both students are very much into it and are having fun.

Game Club

Mr. Muelemann, an art teacher, originally was the chess club advisor, however, he knew nothing about chess. So he decided to make a club where kids could go to after school just to wind down and hang out. Starr Kim said, "I think it's just a cool place to hang out with friends after school." In game club, students can go there and play board games, role playing games, video games, and card games. Mr. Muelemann stated, "Game Club is a place where students can come and compete at an intellectual level."

Jay Santa and Keith Fennessey both agreed that game club is a great stress reliever after school. They both like meeting new people and they think game club is unique.

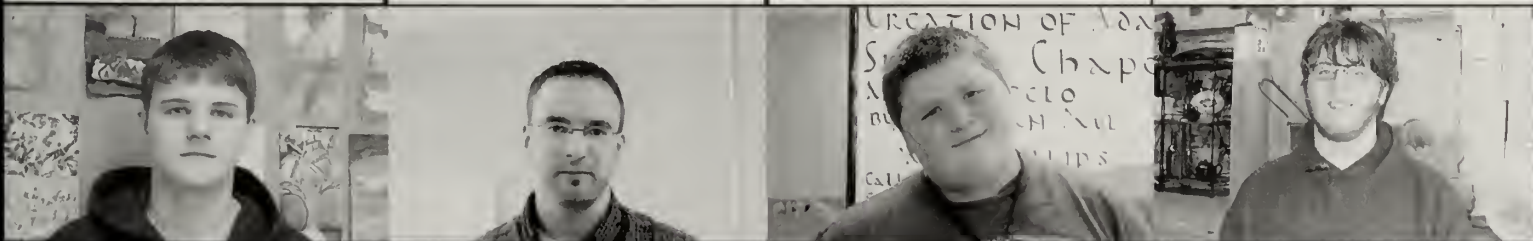

Alan Edwards commented on Game Club and said, "It's a really cool place where we can hang out."

Mr. Muelemann is the advisor who wants to give kids the chance to wind down after school.

Keith Fennessey said, "It's great to see people getting together who wouldn't normally hang out."

Steve Freisberg enjoys coming to game club every Tuesday after school just to have a good time.

SkillsUSA is a national organization in which students can test their technical knowledge while competing in the trades that they practice in school. The organization is made up of more than 264,500 high school and college students, and it even has some professional members. Student Council

Student Council is one of the most popular clubs at CCHS. It gives students a voice in what will happen during the school year. One of the things that keeps Student Council very busy at Comp is spirit week. Spirit week takes a lot of careful planning and organizing. This year they changed some of the events and days of spirit week. For example, this year's dress up days included Hawaiian Day, Superhero/Villain Day, 50's Day, and of course, Color Day.

Student Council also does a lot of community service. This year they ran a Hurricane Katrina fund. They raised over $3,000 in donations. Student Council made Christmas cards for Shriners as well. They also collected old cell phones to be made into "calling card phones" so that soldiers in Iraq can call home. As you can see, our Student Council is very busy and doing a great job making this school year exciting.

- Marissa Provost

Secretary Jodi Fairbanks, President Rachel Feyre, and Vice President Nicole Hill are discussing important topics to announce to their fellow Student Council members at a meeting. They do a great job of organizing upcoming events and ideas for the future. They are all fantastic role models that the Student Council members can really look up to.

Tiarra Grigg, Tamara Clawson, and Faleesha Gonzalez all sit in at a colorguard meeting and watch the other members practice. Since it is their first year in Color Guard, these freshmen sit back and take some mental notes before jumping into the action.

Color Guard and Band

Who are the people that are at every home game all year? Fans of course; but they aren't the only ones. Color guard and band supply the music and entertainment at all of our games year round. Color Guard is a group of students who entertain our crowds with flags, rifles, and the occasional saber. These students dance, twirl, and do intricate routines. It takes great focus to do it correctly, and it takes awhile to get it down pat.

Most students in the band chose their instrument long ago, have practiced for years, and express their talent through chords and keys. Students involved with band work year round at perfecting their musical pieces. Band here at Chicopee Comprehensive is offered as a course you may take during the school day, whereas color guard is an extracurricular activity after school. So whether you're at a game to watch the team play, or to see who wins the sword, make sure to take time to stop and hear the music.

-Jessica Pepin
-Katie Liucci

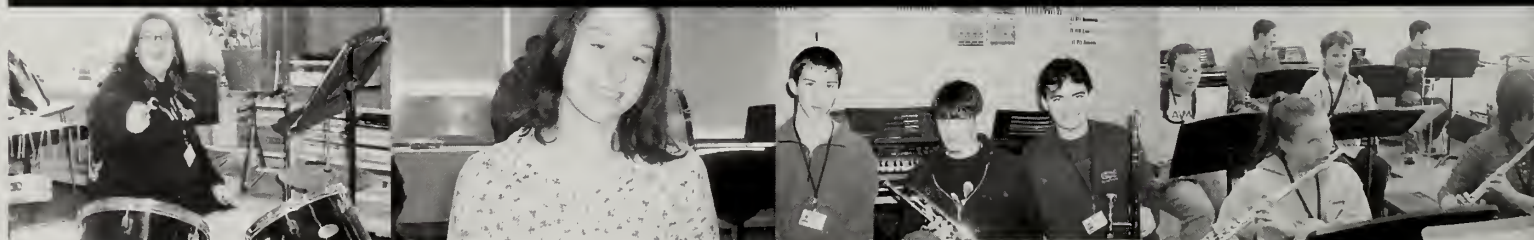

Color Guard isn't just rifles! Junior Chris Herbert practices his Color Guard routine with a large flag. It may look easy, but it's more challenging than it appears.

A drum roll, please! Sophomore Rachelle Ranaud shows off her skill on the drums in band.

"Despite what people think, band really is for everyone," says Crystal Russell.

This early in the morning, these weak smiles were the best we could hope for from these band members!!

Practice, practice, practice!! Time is precious during fourth period, so these band members take their practice time seriously.

Chorus

Alto, Soprano, and Bass.

To most people these words don't mean much. But to the chorus students at Chicopee Comprehensive High School, those are more than just three little words. Students in chorus are divided into one of these three categories based on which range they sing in. The next time you hear vocal music, listen for each separate part. Our chorus happens to be a well organized group of talented students.

Chorus performs two concerts a year. The Christmas concert may consist of Christmas melodies along with something like The Beatles' classic hits. Another concert performed in May, is known as the annual Spring Concert. When not performing Beatles' songs and Christmas carols, our chorus is singing Disney songs and show tunes. Though they don't perform any original songs, but they do have their own unique renditions of well-known pieces, which are just as good as the originals, if not better.

- Jessica Pepin

- Katie Liucci

Singing for chorus isn't all work... it can be lots of fun too!! Sam Boncore, Manny Mundo, Jen Buchanan and Heather Menard have a few laughs while singing a Disney medley together.

"I've been singing my entire life, so when I saw that Comp had chorus, I knew it was right for me." -Heather Menard

"I started chorus this year and I really like it. I'm excited about doing Grease later on this year." -Kim Lavalley

These members of chorus find the warm-up singing relaxing and fun-- different from the typical school work!

Danielle Smith and Heather Locke, who are both seniors this year, say they are going to miss chorus next year. "I really like doing the showtunes," says Heather.

Elizabeth Gaboury, Heather Menard, and Jen Buchanan gather around the piano for a few warm-up songs. Today they are warming up with Disney songs, which happen to be their favorites at the moment.

Yearbook

Yearbook class is not always about being serious. There are times where your creative side needs to be shown to make the book interesting. This year's yearbook staff knows how bring the fun to the yearbook .

Behind the Scenes

Making a yearbook takes time, hard work, tons of creativity, dedication, and an ounce of inspiration. This year's yearbook class had all of these qualities and more. Editor, Laura Cyran and assistant editor Jordan Marshall agree that the rest of the yearbook staff has worked as hard as they could throughout the year and are both very happy with how it is turning out. Mr. Brown, the advisor, said, "This is the best staff that I've ever had. They really care, they work hard, and they make their deadlines."

Making the deadlines is hard work, but when everyone works efficiently and helps each other out it can really pay off.
- Marissa Provost and Jen Tapp

Yearbook editor Laura Cyran was prepared for "Fifties Day" during spirit week. She spent many late nights at home editing yearbook pages on her new laptop.

Electrathon

Academics Meets Vocational

Chicopee Comp's Electrathon program started in 2002. There has been beneficial donations from The Chicopee Police Department Patrolmen's Union, who donated their helmets and Chicopee Design Techniques, who have donated graphics for the car and the trailer. Both advisors, Mr. Clark and Mr. Gassnola, have greatly appreciated this. Mr. Clark is also a member of the board of directors for Electrathon Nationals.

The car itself is made by many of the Career Tech. shops together. Senior Andrew Chagnon says, "Electrathon has been an awesome experience, and I'm really going to miss it next year. The crew is fun and very easy to get along with." This year the team has started its second car.

Hopefully it will amaze everyone next year!

- Jen Tapp and Marissa Provost

One of the drivers, Todd View, gets ready to race the electrathon vehicle at Lime Rock Park, CT. He said, "I was nervous and also very anxious to see how the team's work has payed off."

Front Row: Nicole McClellan, Joe Stadnicki, and Mr. Clark.
2nd row: Principal, Mr. Kozikowski, Karen Goncalves, Brent Favreau, Andrew Chagnon, Adam Reardon, Tyler Landry, Todd View, & Mr. Rege.
Row 3: CT Director Mr. Widelo, Mr. Gassnola, Michael Drzyzga, Charlie Bizon, Nathan Leclerc, Justin Stevens, and Josh Dufrane.

Preparation

Hard at work! Jay Santa and Julianne Labrecque are typing up their stories for the February Issue of The Comp Chronicle.

Newspaper

Essays, interviews, and photography are what most student's minds come up with when thinking of the newspaper. You might think also of English skills, but for the students at the Comp Chronicle, there is something more important. Newspaper gives the students the ability to establish a stronger relationship with other students through their writing. They also keep the students, teachers, and the larger community aware of what is going on in the school. Games, practices, events, you name it, and their there. On the surface some people might say that Chicopee Comp is boring, but thanks to the students at the Comp Chronicle we all know that it is actually interesting and full of life.

-Heather Salamon

"My best story this year was one I worked on with Nate Belisle, about the hockey team. They're having a great season, so it was fun writing about their success," said Julianne LaBrecque.

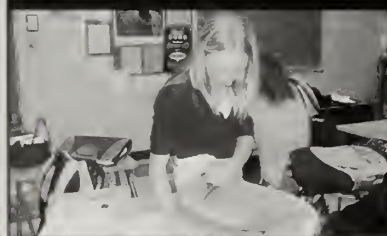

"Newspaper is interesting and most of the time it's fun."
-Tiffany MacDougall

"I have bad luck in this class, because my files are always erased. We definitely need new computers." -Christina Lopez

"I like to be a part of school Newspaper. I feel very accomplished when I write for other students" -Andrea Zimmerman

"We get to cover different topics. That's mainly what I like about this class." -Jay Santa

National Honor Society

Officers Rachel Feyre, Nathan Belisle, Margaret Terkelsen, and Stephanie Grzelak are very busy people. The officers took time to smile during one of their monthly meetings.

"NHS got me to volunteer more and do more stuff for the community on top of making new friends!"
-Jodi Fairbanks

Talented, smart, overachievers?! That's what the faculty and students at Comp have to say about this year's National Honor Society. National Honor Society is a group of students that strive to do well in school, to be role models, and help out their community. These students involve themselves in more than just school-work. To raise money, the students of the NHS held candy sales, had a 50/50 raffle, and helped out with the Fire and Police Departments at a Health Fair to raise money. They excel in helping out at local soup kitchens, working for parks and recreation, tutoring, and assisting at PTO meetings. These students are future leaders.

"What's great about NHS is the character of the members. There's more than just high grades to getting in. You need character and service," said Michael Drzyzga.

-Heather Salamon

"This is my first year on NHS; it was a lot harder than I thought it would be to keep up my grades as well as be involved in the school and community."

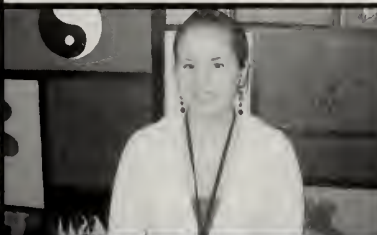

"NHS is not only a way to show academic achievement but a way to show your character. NHS is a great group of people who all work hard." - Mike Cantin

"Being on NHS to me is an honor. It's a group of Comps finest students. We all have worked hard to get where we are." - Ally Montemagni

"I enjoy contributing to my community by tutoring and volunteering at the soup kitchen." - Nicole Baker

Mrs. Hannah's advisory gets together to talk and do fun activities. Not all advisories are as interesting as this one.

Student Advisory

Unique, boring, fun, or an annoyance. These are just a few words that many of the students here at Comp have said about Student Advisory. Besides being a school of academics and career preparation, Comp stands out even more among many of the state's schools because of Advisory.

Opinions about advisory vary. "I like advisories because you learn new things, and my advisory teacher is really nice," Crystal LaBrecque said about Mr. Vanderzwaag's student advisory. Other students like Heather Stanley say, "I think that we shouldn't have advisories because we really don't do anything, and they're a waste of time."

Student Advisory classes are held to help students come together to talk about concerns, learn new things, make new friends, and just have fun. Whether you like them or you don't, most would agree with Courtney Young who explains, "Advisories are good depending on how comfortable the crowd is with each other. Open up and you'll have fun."

-Heather Salamon & Jess Pepin

Junior Allyson Duffy comments, "I think that the only good thing about advisories is that classes are shorter." Advisories give the students here at Comp a chance to get away from their many stressful classes. It gives students a break from their normal routines and is time for stress release and a more casual approach.

Chatting in advisory

Stephanie with Officer Pete Payson and SMSgt. Tom Dumas at a senior assembly. The purpose of the assembly was to acquaint students with the reality of drinking and driving. Safety measures were also covered.

"SADD is there to prevent students from doing stupid things, and to inform students of problems that are occurring now," President Stephanie

It seems that nowadays, there are many articles and commercials about making the right decisions about such things as trying drugs or drinking. Everyone's heard the commercials for "my Anti-Drug", and commercials from "Mothers Against Drinking and Driving", but for the students at Comp, SADD isn't just one of those commercials.

SADD is a group of students that like to help promote good decisions; they can be looked upon as role models. SADD works throughout the year to inform students as well as teachers of the dangers of drinking and driving, doing drugs, and things like date rape. Throughout the year, SADD involves the students in activities like The Day of the Dead which reminds students of the possible consequences of drinking and driving, the Contract for Life which has students plan with parents for a "no questions asked" deal for getting a safe ride home, and other assemblies that help encourage students to make good decisions.

GRADUATION

The night of graduation was filled with tears of joy. It marked the end of high school for more than 200 students. Along with their diploma, many students received awards for their academic achievements. It was a happy experience tinged with sadness that they will not forget. - Tyrra Minto

Key Club Vice President Allison Bach announces the return of the honorary Key Club Bell. Next year she will be president and vows the bell will be a part of each meeting.

This year Key Club members were extremely active in the community. They served the elderly in spaghetti suppers, hosted the live Kiwanis auction on Channel 5, helped the Barry School vacation camp, ran the Topor Dodge Bike Safety event, and gave out helmets to the children. They also helped out at the CCHS v. CHS faculty volleyball game, and they conducted seasonal events for the Parks and Recreation Center. With all work, the students involved with Key Club still manage to have fun.

Softball

Rain, rain, rain. The rain persisted for weeks, and the junior varsity and varsity teams had few games occur on schedule and fewer practices than they would have liked. The teams had a rough season in other ways as well. Both teams worked hard during what practices they managed to have, but despite both teams' perseverance and effort, they did not achieve the kind of success they would have liked. The coaches, players, parents, and students from CCHS stood behind these teams and made the season worthwhile.

While Christina Martin entertains the crowd in the background, Nichole Morneau braces herself for the ball.

Junior Tracey Williams positions herself at the plate. She waits for the pitch, swings, and it's a hit!

The junior varsity softball team looks on during their game. They are very focused on the ongoing game and hope they can pull out a win.

Amanda Major winds up for the pitch.

Freshman Joe Chapdelaine patiently awaits for the pitcher to strike out an Amherst batter.

For these five seniors, this moment carried intense feeling. Although they weren't able to make it to states, they tried their hardest and played an amazing game.

Senior Sean Bergeron has determination and passion written all over his face and can't wait to play the game.

Coach Kane and Coach Dulchinos love what they do. They are very proud of their boys and how far they made it this season.

Batting is not as easy as it may seem. You must keep your eye on the ball and your head in the game. This batter is well aware.

The tennis team had a fun and eventful season; they tried their best every game and worked hard at practice. The team had spirit and a determined drive. Leadership from the experienced returnees was in abundance. It was a privilege for Mr. Zdroykowski to coach these fantastic girls especially since it was his last season coaching tennis.

Mr. Zdroykowski takes some time to have a little fun before the game. He loves playing racket guitar in his spare time.

Ryan Dube and Josh Chouinard practice hitting the ball to each other. Both seem to be taking it lightheartedly.

Coach Paquette said, "Tennis is life... It was a rebuilding season guided by senior leadership." The captains were Colin Boone and Sean Hurley. Both seniors tried their best to lead the team to a momentous conclusion. Despite their efforts, the season wasn't what they had hoped for. However, the team stuck together and created fantastic memories.

Boys Tennis

Girls

The Girls Track & Field team finished the 2006 season with a record of 0-8 and an 18th place finish at the Western Mass. Championships. The Colts' top individual performers included thrower Katelynn Hamelin and freshmen standout Lindsay Forrette. Katelynn finished 17th at Western Mass. in the shot put while Lindsay earned three points for Comp with a fourth place finish in the pole vault.

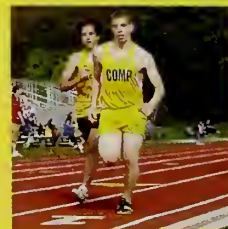

Senior Natalie Asselin competes in the long jump. Natalie also competed in the mile and 300m hurdles during the meet for the Colts.

Lyuba Tsikhotskaya soars through the air as she attempts the long jump for Comp. She earned a third place in the event, but it was not enough as the Colts lost 93-46 to rival Chicopee.

Boys

Due in large part to lack of depth, the boys Track & Field team finished the season with a record of 0-7. Despite their struggles as a team, the Colts still had strong performances from a few athletes. Throwers Manny Mundo and Matt Blanchard and distance runner Steve Czupryna all qualified to compete in the Western Mass. Championships. Manny finished 9th in the shot put, and Matt finished with a 7th place in discus. Steve earned ten points for Comp with a first place in the mile which placed Comp 15th overall in the team standings at Western Mass.

Junior Joe Krzystofik paces himself during the mile against Chicopee High. Joe's victory in the race was one of only two event wins for the Colts that day.

Manny Mundo finishes his throw of the shot put with a strong follow-through. Manny had a strong senior season as he qualified for the Western Mass. Championships.

Senior Steve Czupryna takes the lead during the one mile run at the Western Mass. Championship. He went on to win the race with a time of 4:27.

Although they are taking a break from their warm-up for the match against Chicopee High, the team is not too nervous to act a little crazy. They went on to beat CHS both times that they played them!

It was an outstanding year for the Comp Varsity Volleyball team! Led by coach Dobson and captained by seniors Greg Powers and Bryan Forrette, the team had fifteen regular season wins and only four losses. This is the best record ever for CCHS boys volleyball. They made it all the way to the quarter finals but were defeated by Westfield High.

"For the potential that our team had, we did great. The future of the team is in good condition," said Powers.

"I will always remember learning and growing on the volleyball court with Bryan Forrette," says senior co-captain, Greg Powers about co-captain Bryan Forrette. "I really do have a connection with him on the court," he added.

Grad Nite 2006

Down in Disney

The seniors spent their last day in Downtown Disney where they got to do some last minute shopping and sight-seeing. Many of the students took advantage of the chance to eat in Planet Hollywood and enjoy the unique atmosphere ...and cute waiters.

Disney's annual Grad Nite celebration took place in Magic Kingdom. The park opened exclusively to high school senior classes and lasts from ten at night until four in the morning. Entertainers, including Teddy Geiger and Fall Out Boy, performed in front of Cinderella's Castle.

Senior class trips usually consist of a day spent somewhere close to home-- maybe white-water rafting. But the advisors for the class of 2006 decided to be a bit more adventurous.

Forty-eight seniors, along with our advisors and a few chaperones, spent four days in Disney World in April where we stayed in the All Star Music Resort. We spent our days (and nights) wandering Disney's parks, including MGM, Typhoon Lagoon, Animal Kingdom, Magic Kingdom, Epcot, and Downtown Disney.

Everyone thought Mrs. Pavoni was insane to take us out of state, but the trip was an amazing success. We will never forget this trip and never be able to thank her enough.

- Melissa Desmarais

Mrs. Pavoni put a lot of time and effort into planning this trip, and it turned out to be an unforgettable success. To show their thanks, the students made her a card, and everyone pitched in to treat her and her husband to a nice dinner.

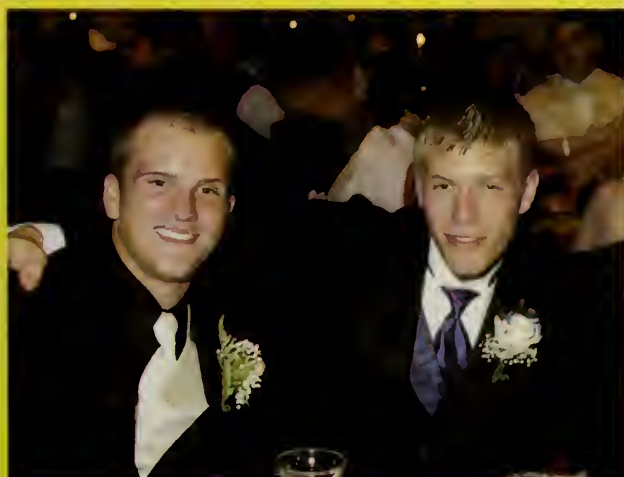

Best friends Jordan Marshall, Sean McClelland, and Nicole Wilk waited four years for this one night. All their expectations for the prom were fulfilled.

Some of the '06 girls enjoy one last prom together. They had a great time and will miss high school.

Senior Prom is a night that is heavily anticipated throughout high school. This year's senior prom was a little different because of the unique and much discussed theme-- The Masquerade. This year, the traditional Tuesday night prom was a blast.

Sean Bergeron and Ryan Dube have been best friends since elementary school.

Senior Prom

Banquet

The senior banquet was filled with reminiscence and tears. The highlight of the evening was of course the dedication, which went to Mr. Osetek and officer Morissette. These two individuals well deserved this honor. The banquet was held at Chateau Provost in Chicopee Mass. A 25-minute slide show of pictures was crafted by Ms. Lafleur. Speeches by class officers and advisors were especially amusing. Many took advantage of the time by having their yearbooks signed and sharing memories that made them laugh or cry. The banquet is the last time the seniors get together as a class before graduation.

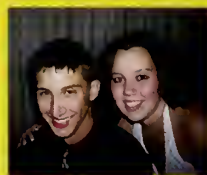

-Heather Salamon

Kayla Glasson and Amanda Barrows had just received their yearbooks. Much of the evening was spent signing them.

Assistant Editor Jordan Marshall and Editor Laura Cyran made their dedication speeches after the class officers spoke. Mr. Osetek and Officer Morissette were surprised and pleased.

Nick Thibault and Kerriane Estabrook enjoyed the buffet at Chateau Provost.

Kali Drainville and Rebecca Pennington peruse their new yearbooks. These two were also active members of the Key Club.

All the sports, swimming, and rock climbing tires you out. Alexandra Moquin and friend take a break and relax together for a little while.

The Picnic at High Meadows is perhaps the most fun event of senior week. There were many activities such as swimming, basketball, dancing, horseback riding, tug-o-war, and rock wall climbing. There was also tons of food for them to eat throughout the day including burgers, tacos, ice cream, cotton candy, popcorn, and much more. Furthermore the seniors lucked out with one of the few days of decent weather after weeks of rain.

While other students were swimming, Jay Santa and Jacinda Taft hang out by the pool. They know how to have fun without getting wet.

Picnic

The seniors were provided with a variety of foods throughout the day; the tacos were a big favorite.
